JEWISH COMMANDOES ON OFFENSIVE

Michigan Police Ordered Into Detroit Strike Area

DETROIT, May 17—Gov. Kim Sigler today ordered Michigan state police to the Highland Park plant of the Chrysler Corp. after local police admitted they were unable to cope with picket line violence.

On learning of a pitched battle between CIO-UAW picketers and Highland Park police at the plant gates, the governor promised to send "sufficient numbers of state policemen to handle any situation."

Violence also threatened to break out at the Dodge truck plant in Macomb County where several hundred pickets blocked office workers from entering.

In Highland Park, fist fighting broke out this morning when an estimated 500 strikers massed in front of one gate and refused to allow non-strikers into the plant.

The white collar employees were kept out despite a court order obtained by the company last week restraining the UAW from barring the plant entrances. The sheriff said approximately 1,000 additional men were massed in the areas near the plant.

At the Highland Park plant several police among the 30 on duty were punched. At least two pickets suffered head cuts.

A Highland Park police lieutenant, Ivan Brown, said several non-strikers were slugged by pickets.

Brown also reported that the pickets surged into the street and pulled the trolleys off of street cars, blocking traffic. He said there was an unsuccessful attempt to overturn an automobile.

Despite the fighting, there were no arrests or serious injuries. Brown declared Highland Park police could keep the situation under control. (Continued on Page Two)

Taft Sees Accord On Draft Bill

Segregation Issue May Be Compromised

WASHINGTON, May 17—Sen. Taft, (R) O., held out hope today for a compromise on the segregation and training issues in the armed forces manpower bill.

But the Senate GOP leader held fast to his plan to postpone action on the controversial draft-training legislation until after two other hotly-disputed measures have cleared the upper chamber.

Taft answered criticism of the draft bill's sponsors who protested the delay. He explained that "definite" prior promises had been given for action on the civil functions and displaced persons bills.

He provided this optimistic note: "There is some possibility of working out the differences on the draft bill—both as to segregation and training."

TAFT HIMSELF opposes the plan to draft 18-year-olds for one year of training. He will support the proposed induction of youths 19 through 25 for two years of military service.

His views were given as the House GOP leadership moved to have the House armed services (Continued on Page Two)

UN Votes To Suspend Atom Talks

Ballot Overrides Red Objections

LAKE SUCCESS, May 17—The United Nations Atomic Commission overruled the Soviet Union today and voted to suspend atom control discussions until after the general assembly in Paris has canvassed the situation.

The 11-nation UN body voted nine to two to halt the talks. Russia and the Ukraine voted "no."

Soviet Delegate Andrei Gromyko had pinned blame for failure to achieve United Nations control of atom weapons on the United States.

The Russian representative lashed out at U. S. policy on atom control in general in a last-ditch attempt to halt the suspension of the atomic energy commission's further discussions in that field as recommended by France, Britain and the United States.

THE CLIMAX in the two-year deadlock in the UN atom body came at a moment when the United States revealed some of the results of secret experiments conducted in the Pacific with improved atomic weapons.

Gromyko accused the three delegations, who proposed suspension, or wishing to avoid progress in atomic control and warned that "only those who call for a new world conflagration" are opposed to such effective and strict control measures.

The Russian charged the United States with primary responsibility for blocking progress toward agreement and said the U. S. was always the first to reject any Soviet proposals in that field.

He alleged that the U. S. in effect "vetoed" the Soviet demand that atom bombs and atomic stockpiles be destroyed and prohibited before an atomic convention should be discussed.

Gromyko said that well-known American politicians constantly were making statements that atomic weapons should serve as tools for "the expansionist policy of the U. S."

Heliotrope Cops Frog Leap Test

ANGELS CAMP, Cal., May 17—Heliotrope, who until Saturday night resided happily in a creek near Angels Camp, is the prize jumping frog of the year.

Heliotrope—blessed for some still unknown reason with the name of a small, purple flower—won first honors in the traditional Angels Camp jumping frog contest yesterday with a combined leap of 11 feet, five inches.

He was owned by a syndicate known as the "Frog Corporation," headed by a University of California pre-medical student, Bill Follette of Berkeley.

The syndicate, a group of California students, captured Heliotrope in a creek near Murphys, Calif.

Blaze Is Driven To Fire Station

The old story of bringing the mountain to Mohammed was applied at the fire station Sunday.

Circleville firemen, in bed at the time, were roused at 12:50 a. m. Sunday to put out a blaze in a 1948 truck, which was being driven southward through Circleville.

Circleville police had escorted the truck to the station, and after the fire, which had originated in the emergency brake and transmission, had been quenched, escorted it on its way again.

Damage to the vehicle was slight, according to firemen.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

There is a complaint from a woman who got a telephone three days ago that she hasn't had a single call from a quiz program.

She says "I am badly in need of a new automobile, house, diamond wrist watch and tour of South America and if they don't call me very soon I'll call them!"

Even when the President is on now, Republicans keep waiting for the jackpot question.

But the feeling seems to be that radio is passing through a phase from which it will recover just as soon as there are as many musicians as merchants working in it.

I hear Petrillo has secretly advised his boys to take a night course in refrigerator installation if they hope to get a network spot.

America Finishes Tests On Weapons In Pacific

Cycle Of Rains Hits Ohio Again

Ohio was back in the rain cycle again Monday after one of the nicest Sundays of the Spring so far.

Electrical and rainstorms spread over the state Sunday night, causing damage in some localities. Trees were felled and several fires were started by lightning.

Weather bureau forecasters said that the rain would level off Monday, with conditions turning a little cooler. It was to be partly cloudy and mild Tuesday.

A rainy condition very similar to that of last year is shaping up in Ohio, observers pointed out. About the only difference is the improvement shown last month when the rain was below last year's level.

"Planting of corn and other crops now is being held up by the wet ground," they said. "Conditions are a little better in the south, but from Columbus northward, the farmers are becoming quite alarmed."

Mass Is Held

BERLIN, May 17—Top United States civil and military officials attended a solemn requiem mass here today for the Rev. Edward J. Flanagan, American Catholic youth rehabilitation leader, who died Saturday.

sion reported to President Truman that they were "successful in all respects."

European sources reported that one of the experiments involved the detonation of an atomic mine, exploded at a depth of 500 meters, or about 1,600 feet.

Neither the Atomic Energy Commission nor any other agency would comment on the European report.

However, the commission declared that the Eniwetok experiments "indicate very substantial progress" in the determination of the United States to retain its atomic leadership.

THE WHITE HOUSE announced Mr. Truman's approval of plans for immediate initiation of further nuclear development, "based upon information gained from the tests."

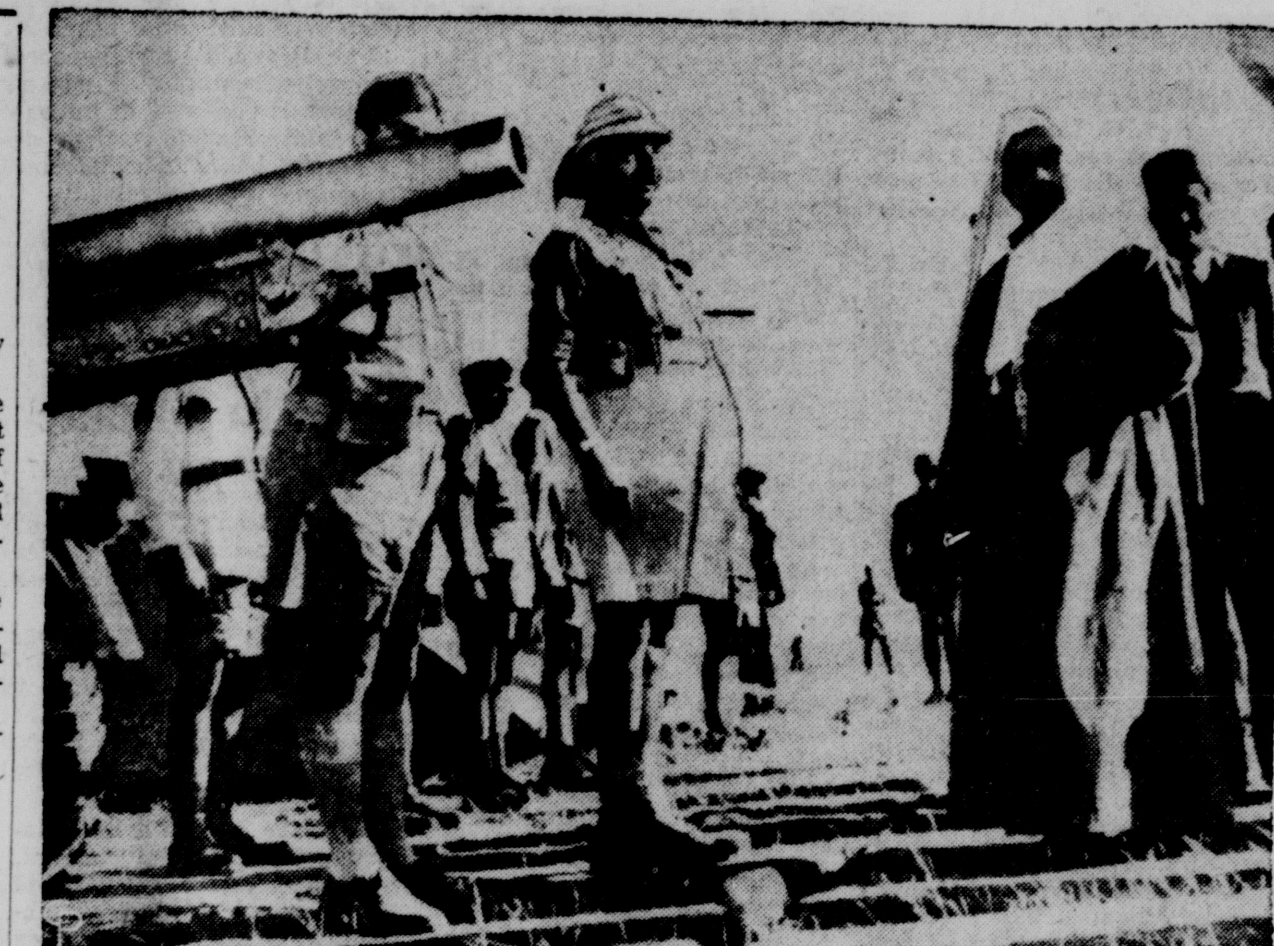

Atomic Energy Commission authorities' supplementary statement will be made tomorrow when the atomic task force which took part in the experiments reaches Honolulu.

WASHINGTON, May 17—Representatives of the United Mine Workers and bituminous industry held separate conferences today preparatory to the opening of negotiations tomorrow on a new soft coal wage agreement.

Momentous Decisions Ahead As America OKs New State

WASHINGTON, May 17—President Truman and other top administration officials today faced a series of momentous decisions on United States policy toward the newly-created state of Israel.

The chief executive's sudden move in recognizing the new Jewish government of Israel a few minutes after its creation received non-partisan approval which appears likely to remove the action from domestic politics.

The White House reiterated today that the act of recognition leaves unchanged the official consideration on lifting the Middle East arms embargo.

Some observers believed the administration would withhold action on the embargo until the United Nations view on the question has been made known.

THE ONLY criticism of Mr. Truman's action in recognizing the government of Israel came from the fact that he took almost no members of Congress and only heads of the State department into his confidence. He did not advise the UN delegation.

In view of the fact that the President recognized the provisional government of the newly-formed state as the "de facto authority" for that area may raise several legal questions.

Stassen, Dewey Due For Radio Debate Tonight

PORTLAND, May 17—New York Gov. Thomas E. Dewey and Harold E. Stassen take opposite sides of the stump tonight in a crucial radio debate for Oregon's 12 presidential delegates to the Republican national convention.

Stassen will uphold the affirmative and Dewey the negative in a nationwide radio hook-up on the subject:

"Shall the Communist party in the United States be outlawed?" The broadcast is scheduled for 9 to 10 p. m. (EST) and will be carried on all major networks.

Each candidate will have 20 minutes for first argument and eight for rebuttal.

Both men turned their attention yesterday away from Oregon's Friday primary long enough to cock an eye toward California's 53 votes in the Republican national convention.

The Minnesota and Dewey made separate announcements that they have accepted invitations from California's Governor Earl Warren to visit with him at Sacramento.

Packer Walkout Situation Clears

ST. PAUL, Minn., May 17—Employees streamed unmolested into the Swift meat packing plant at South St. Paul today.

Only seven striking CIO-United Packinghouse Workers pickets marched in front of the plant gates as the men and women drove through in cars or arrived on foot.

It was the first time since the nine-week old strike started March 16 that large numbers of workers had returned to work.

Truck after truck of livestock also drove into the Swift plant.

Meanwhile, National Guard troops patrolled the Wilson and Co. plant at Albert Lea, Minn., after Gov. Luther W. Youngdahl complied with a request for aid by local authorities.

1. Shall the six-month-old arms embargo on the Middle East be lifted?

2. If so, which will it benefit the most the Arabs or Jews?

3. Should the United States assume an all-out attitude in support of the Jewish state to the point of aiding it in resisting the Arabs?

4. What policy is to be assumed in the United Nations when the question of a threat to the peace in the Middle East comes before it?

Yank Soldier Caught In Spell Of Beautiful Red

WASHINGTON, May 17—The American government apparently got the jump on Russia today by explaining the case of a young American Army sergeant who deserted in Moscow and proclaimed his intention to remain in the Soviet.

The State department announced that Sgt. James M. MacMillan, 21, of Boulder, Colo., has refused to return to the United States following his term of duty at the American embassy in the Russian capital.

Department officials told reporters at a special Sunday night news conference that the soldier allegedly had fallen under the spell of a beautiful Russian agent and that the incident did not involve politics.

The woman in the case was named as Mrs. Galina Dunayeva Biconish, who previously had been married to another American Army sergeant, John Biconish.

It would be "up to the military," the department said, as to whether MacMillan would be tried by a military court for desertion. At present, his whereabouts are unknown. Officials said he allegedly left in company with the woman the night of May 15, and has not been heard from since.

Israelites Strike At Lebanese

Arabs Continue Air Attacks

TEL AVIV, May 17—Jewish commandoes took the offensive in Israel's war for independence today.

They struck across the frontier of Lebanon and blew up a strategic bridge 10 miles inside the Lebanese border, retreating after the lightning raid while Tel Aviv was subjected to its tenth Arab air attack.

The Egyptian government in Cairo, anticipating an early end to the embargo on arms shipments to Palestine, announced that the waters lapping the Holy Land now are "dangerous" to all shipping.

This indicated that mine-laying operations may have begun in addition to patrol operations by the Egyptian navy.

The newly-formed Tel Aviv broadcasting station, "Voice of Israel," warned Egypt and other states now invading Palestine that their cities will be subjected to aerial bombardment.

A broadcast in Arabic said: "Air attacks on Arab cities will come."

A HAGANAH communiqué said that the commandoes blew up an important bridge on the Litani river, west of Marjayoun, on the road leading into North-eastern Palestine.

Haganah said that destruction of the bridge forced the retreat of a Lebanese invasion column moving toward Palestine. All the commandoes were said to have returned safely.

LAKE SUCCESS, May 17—Soviet Delegate Andrei Gromyko indicated here today that Russia's policy on Israel and Arab invasion of Palestine still is uncertain.

The Russian, who was on hand to battle the move by the Western faction to close out atomic control discussions, announced he did not yet know whether he can take a stand today in the Security Council on any question related to Palestine events.

Previous experience has disclosed that Gromyko means he has not yet received instructions on such policy matters from the Soviet government.

The U. S. delegation claims that despite Washington reports of a decision by President Truman to back the Israel charges of aggression at UN, instructions to that effect have not yet been received.

Britain also is sitting on the fence, although the Big Five and smaller powers are under heavy pressure to make their viewpoints known.

At the same time, officials sources admitted that Jewish fighters have engaged Egyptian troops advancing toward Israel. But it was asserted that the advance is continuing, despite Jewish artillery and mortar fire.

HAGANAH announced in Tel Aviv that 30 Egyptian soldiers were killed and a quantity of arms seized in an engagement near Nir Am, about 23 miles inside Palestine.

Premier Nokrashy Pasha declared after a cabinet meeting in Cairo that he was "greatly satisfied with the Palestine military situation in the light of the latest army report."

Another minister declared: "The results achieved thus far are beyond our expectations."

Gaza, 20 miles from the Egyptian border and only 40 miles from Tel Aviv, was officially stated to be the operational headquarters of the Egyptian forces. Late official reports said that army units are advancing from Gaza down the coastal road to Tel Aviv in the face of determined resistance by Jewish settlers.

Justice, Grocer Ordered To File Answer In Case

Justice of Peace H. O. Eveland and Don J. White of South Scioto street, have been given until May 29 to file an answer or pleading in Pickaway County common pleas court in a case alleging connivance to collect a $134.70 grocery bill from Merle Thomas of 116 West Mill street.

Thomas' petition, filed in January, stated White, a former Circleville grocer, and Eveland entered into an agreement in which the grocer would pay Eveland one-third of any amount of the bill the magistrate collected from Thomas or his wife.

As a further claim of injustice, Thomas claims the summons which was intended for him was not served personally but merely left at the Thomas home.

In July of 1946, the petition states, White filed action with Eveland for the collection of the grocery bill which he claimed was owed him. When a Circleville Township constable failed to find Thomas at home, he reportedly left the papers with Thomas' wife.

BECAUSE of the failure to make a personal summons, Thomas did not appear in court for a hearing. At that time, Eveland entered the judgment on the court records listing the grocery bill and costs, the petition states.

Thomas says, the case is illegal because the summons was not served, because no hearing was held and because the court had a financial interest in the case.

While her husband, Max Anderson, is serving time in the Mansfield reformatory for robbery, Mildred Anderson has asked for a dissolution of their marriage from Pickaway County common pleas court.

Her petition says Anderson was committed last August from Franklin County common pleas court.

The couple was married Sept. 15, 1939, in Greenup, Ky. They are the parents of three children, ages seven, five and two, her petition claims. Mrs. Anderson is asking for the custody of the children.

America Finishes Tests On Weapons In Pacific

the vast atomic proving ground in the former Japanese-managed area of Marshall Islands.

The White House statement said:

"THE PRESIDENT today received from the United States

Atomic Energy Commission a report on tests of atomic weapons conducted at the commission's proving ground at Eniwetok atoll.

"The commission reported that the tests, involving three atomic weapons, each of improved design, was successful in all respects, and that the results indicate very substantial progress.

"The President gave general approval of commission plans for steps it proposed to initiate at once for further nuclear development, based upon information gained from the tests."

Some 1,000 non-striking office workers stood across the street while the skirmishing was in progress cheering police and booing the pickets.

The picket line fracas came as four CIO-UAW General Motors units voted for strike action and the auto union concentrated its wage drive on the automotive "big three."

As the strike of 75,000 Chrysler workers entered the sixth day, the union also challenged the Ford Motor Co. to prove its contention that higher wages would have to be matched by higher prices.

Members of Ford Local 600 backed the Chrysler strike with an appropriation of $125,000 for the third round wage drive.

The local, largest in the CIO, also pledged its uniformed flying squad for emergency "picket" duty.

Strike action against General Motors could be taken with expiration of the union contract on May 28. The Ford UAW contract runs to July 15.

The union accused Ford of profiting and offered to withdraw demands for higher wages if a roll-back in the cost of living can be accomplished. This was a formal reply to the company's Saturday night proposals for what amounted to pay cuts.

The Meteor was in a Canadian port when the walkout was ordered. The crew of the Paratex left the vessel Friday, but went back within five hours when Gulf agreed to an extension of the present contract until the hiring hall dispute is settled.

Tanker companies contend that renewal of a contract clause giving the union hiring halls would be a violation of the Taft-Hartley Act.

Soviets Hoping For U.S. Meet

MOSCOW, May 17 — Approval of Henry Wallace's proposed two-power parity in the Soviet press indicated today that Russia still is hopeful that Soviet-American talks can be arranged.

Pravda and Izvestia last night hailed the "realism and logic" of the third party candidate's suggestions for Russo-American amity as expressed in an open letter to Premier Stalin.

Pickaway Student Tops District Competition In English Exam

Returns on the recent district-state scholarship tests held at Ohio State university show that Kathryn Morris of Pickaway Township high school received the highest comparative score of all the township schools.

Miss Morris, who was examined in English II ranked first in the district and seventh in the state. She was the only one in the township schools to receive an award in state competition.

Ashville high school placed the most students in district ranking on the tests, eight having been named.

They are Marilyn Bowers, who ranked fourth in the district for plane geometry; Joanne Hinkle, with fifth place in Latin II; Carolyn Fudge, with an eighth place in social studies; William Trego ninth in bookkeeping; Clara Cummins with 15th for algebra; and Joy Wetherell with 15th for world history.

Saltcreek Township ranked second with number of pupils represented in the district.

THEY ARE Charles Jones with sixth place in world history, George Dingess with 12th place for biology; and Betty Woodward with 13th position for English 10.

Walnut placed Betty Jones in 15th position in English 9, and Patty Miller at 15th in English 12.

Pickaway, in addition to the mark set by Miss Morris, placed Marilyn Miller 14th in English 9.

Kermit Ridgway of Darby was awarded the second position in the district for his mark in English 9, but his score was not high enough to place him in state competition.

June Speakman of Perry ranked 12th in the district in English 11.

Jo Ann Clark of Williamsport ranked 13th in the district in her English 10 exam.

Last of the Pickaway County students to place in the district was Peggy Tabbill, of New Holland, who ranked 19th in English 12.

1. Assist displaced persons in Europe who want to go to the Holy Land and assist in strengthening Israel. Gen. Lucius Clay in Berlin already has said that American forces will assist such displaced persons in getting to the borders.

2. Facilitate the movement of Zionists and sympathizers from this country to Palestine. Presumably some assurance that they would not join the armed forces might be demanded and, in any event, they would be warned that they would lose U. S. protection if they did so.

3. Name an envoy to the new state, presumably as the President's personal representative since de facto recognition does not call for an exchange of diplomats.

Long Probation Period Levied In Support Case

Three years probation and a suspended sentence was handed William L. Leisure of Bloomsburg when he pleaded guilty at arraignment Saturday in Pickaway County Common pleas court following his indictment for non-support by the May term by the grand jury.

In a second arraignment, Edna Tye of Columbus pleaded innocent to operating a motor vehicle without an operator's permit. She was released under $100 bond. She also was indicted by the grand jury.

Disposition of the cases of Mrs. Tye, Emerson Cain, 19, Pickaway Township and Robert C. Lilly, 27, Beckley, W. Va., has been delayed pending the arraignment of J. Corbett Martin of Derby who was indicted for keeping a gambling room.

Both Cain and Lilly are in the Pickaway County jail awaiting further action by the court.

Included in the conditions of Leisure's probation are that he will refrain from drinking alcoholic beverages and stay away from places selling those beverages; report periodically to the prosecuting attorney; and pay $15 per month toward the support of his child.

Taft Sees Accord On Draft Bill

committee rewrite its draft bill to make inductions effective only upon issuance of a presidential proclamation.

Speaker Martin, (R) Mass., said there is "strong sentiment" for this because Congress might not be in session when the need became pressing.

Others on Capitol Hill frankly pointed out that many members of Congress do not like to have the final responsibility of ordering a draft in an election year.

Taft said he does not think the segregation amendment of Sen. Russell, (D) Ga., would pass the Senate if brought to a vote. Russell's proposal would assure every inductee, upon request, assignment to a unit composed entirely of members of his own race.

Unless solved by some compromise acceptable to Southern Democrats poised to battle the civil rights issue, the segregation dispute could result in blocking enactment of any manpower legislation.

3 Persons Hurt As Liquor Aides Stage Gunfight

AKRON, May 17—Three persons were being treated for gunshot wounds in Akron hospital today as the result of a running gun battle between two state liquor agents and a bartender accused of selling liquor on Sunday.

Agent Abner Vance, 30, of Cleveland, and a bystander to the gun duel, Mrs. Evelyn Garrett, 46, of Akron, suffered multiple gunshot wounds. Vance was reported in good condition at City hospital. Mrs. Garrett's condition was described as fair.

The 46-year-old bartender was in fair condition at Peoples hospital, apparently the victim of a return shot fired by one of the agents.

Vance and Agent Edward Payne said they had gone to arrest the bartender's wife for selling liquor on Sunday, but that when she said she would not come peacefully, they left to call the vice squad and a wagon.

They stated that as they left the bartender opened fire. The agents reported the bartender escaped in a dump truck after being wounded.

He was arrested at Peoples hospital when he sought medical aid. His wife was held on suspicion.

Route 4 Man Hurt In Mishap

Leonard Gilmore of Circleville Route 4 received bruises Sunday when, according to witnesses, he walked into the rear fender of a north-bound car at the intersection of Court and Main streets.

Police were told that the car, driven by Alvin Blake of Columbus, was proceeding north with the green light when Gilmore stepped into it.

Some 1,000 non-striking office workers stood across the street while the skirmishing was in progress cheering police and booing the pickets.

The picket line fracas came as four CIO-UAW General Motors units voted for strike action and the auto union concentrated its wage drive on the automotive "big three."

As the strike of 75,000 Chrysler workers entered the sixth day, the union also challenged the Ford Motor Co. to prove its contention that higher wages would have to be matched by higher prices.

Members of Ford Local 600 backed the Chrysler strike with an appropriation of $125,000 for the third round wage drive.

The local, largest in the CIO, also pledged its uniformed flying squad for emergency "picket" duty.

Strike action against General Motors could be taken with expiration of the union contract on May 28. The Ford UAW contract runs to July 15.

The union accused Ford of profiting and offered to withdraw demands for higher wages if a roll-back in the cost of living can be accomplished. This was a formal reply to the company's Saturday night proposals for what amounted to pay cuts.

Estate Aide Bypasses Court

Don C. Bartholomew, administrator for the Enema C. Bartholomew estate, Saturday bypassed Pickaway County common pleas court to carry his case for hearing in the November session of district court of appeals when it meets here.

In March, Judge Sterling M. Lamb in probate court dismissed the case against Ansel W. Kirkpatrick of New Holland where he had been accused of concealing the sale of 13 crypts of a 37 crypt mausoleum in New Holland.

Records state Kirkpatrick was half owner of the mausoleum and the Bartholomew estate owner of the remaining half. The petition filed in probate court said the defendant had accounted for the sale of 24 sections, but 13 went unreported.

Soviets Hoping For U.S. Meet

MOSCOW, May 17—Approval of Henry Wallace's proposed two-power parity in the Soviet press indicated today that Russia still is hopeful that Soviet-American talks can be arranged.

Pravda and Izvestia last night hailed the "realism and logic" of the third party candidate's suggestions for Russo-American amity as expressed in an open letter to Premier Stalin.

Pickaway Student Tops District Competition In English Exam

Returns on the recent district-state scholarship tests held at Ohio State university show that Kathryn Morris of Pickaway Township high school received the highest comparative score of all the township schools.

Miss Morris, who was examined in English II ranked first in the district and seventh in the state. She was the only one in the township schools to receive an award in state competition.

Ashville high school placed the most students in district ranking on the tests, eight having been named.

They are Marilyn Bowers, who ranked fourth in the district for plane geometry; Joanne Hinkle, with fifth place in Latin II; Carolyn Fudge, with an eighth place in social studies; William Trego ninth in bookkeeping; Clara Cummins with 15th for algebra; and Joy Wetherell with 15th for world history.

Saltcreek Township ranked second with number of pupils represented in the district.

THEY ARE Charles Jones with sixth place in world history; George Dingess with 12th place for biology; and Betty Woodward with 13th position for English 10.

Walnut placed Betty Jones in 13th position in English 9, and Patty Miller at 15th in English 12.

Pickaway, in addition to the mark set by Miss Morris, placed Marilyn Miller 14th in English 9.

Kermit Ridgway of Darby was awarded the second position in the district for his mark in English 9, but his score was not high enough to place him in state competition.

June Speakman of Perry ranked 12th in the district in English 11.

Jo Ann Clark of Williamsport ranked 13th in the district in her English 10 exam.

Last of the Pickaway County students to place in the district was Peggy Terbill, of New Holland, who ranked 19th in English 12.

U.S. Facing Big Decision

air raids have been directed at port facilities.

On the positive side of providing assistance to the new state there are several steps the United States can give. They are:

1. Assist displaced persons in Europe who want to go to the Holy Land and assist in strengthening Israel. Gen. Lucius Clay in Berlin already has said that American forces will assist such displaced persons in getting to the borders.

2. Facilitate the movement of Zionists and sympathizers from this country to Palestine. Presumably some assurance that they would not join the armed forces might be demanded and, in any event, they would be warned that they would lose U. S. protection if they did so.

3. Name an envoy to the new state, presumably as the President's personal representative since de facto recognition does not call for an exchange of diplomats.

Long Probation Period Levied In Support Case

Three years probation and a suspended sentence was handed William L. Leisure of Bloomingburg when he pleaded guilty at arraignment Saturday in Pickaway County Common pleas court following his indictment for non-support by the May term by the grand jury.

In a second arraignment, Edna Tye of Columbus pleaded innocent to operating a motor vehicle without an operator's permit. She was released under $100 bond. She also was indicted by the grand jury.

Disposition of the cases of Mrs. Tye, Emerson Cain, 13, Pickaway Township and Robert C. Lilly, 27, Beckley, W. Va., has been delayed pending the arraignment of J. Corbett Martin of Derby who was indicted for keeping a gambling room.

Both Cain and Lilly are in the Pickaway County jail awaiting further action by the court.

Included in the conditions of Leisure's probation are that he refrain from drinking alcoholic beverages and stay away from places selling those beverages; report periodically to the prosecuting attorney; and pay $15 per month toward the support of his child.

Taft Sees Accord On Draft Bill

committee rewrite its draft bill to make inductions effective only upon issuance of a presidential proclamation.

Speaker Martin, (R) Mass., said there is "strong sentiment" for this because Congress might not be in session when the need became pressing.

Others on Capitol Hill frankly pointed out that many members of Congress do not like to have the final responsibility of ordering a draft in an election year.

Taft said he does not think the segregation amendment of Sen. Russell, (D) Ga., would pass the Senate if brought to a vote. Russell's proposal would assure every inductee, upon request, assignment to a unit composed entirely of members of his own race.

Unless solved by some compromise acceptable to Southern Democrats poised to battle over the civil rights issue, the segregation dispute could result in blocking enactment of any manpower legislation.

3 Persons Hurt As Liquor Aides Stage Gunfight

AKRON, May 17—Three persons were being treated for gunshot wounds in Akron hospital today as the result of a running gun battle between two state liquor agents and a bartender accused of selling liquor on Sunday.

Agent Abner Vance, 30, of Cleveland, and a bystander to the gun duel, Mrs. Evelyn Garret, 46, of Akron, suffered multiple shotgun wounds. Vance was reported in good condition at City hospital. Mrs. Garrett's condition was described as fair.

The 46-year-old bartender was in fair condition at Peoples hospital, apparently the victim of a return shot fired by one of the agents.

Vance and Agent Edward Payne said they had gone to arrest the bartender's wife for selling liquor on Sunday, but that when she said she would not come peacefully, they left to call the vice squad and a wagon.

They stated that as they left the bartender opened fire. The agents reported the bartender escaped in a dump truck after being wounded.

He was arrested at Peoples hospital when he sought medical aid. His wife was held on suspicion.

Route 4 Man Hurt In Mishap

Leonard Gilmore of Circleville Route 4 received bruises Sunday when, according to witnesses, he walked into the rear fender of a north-bound car at the intersection of Court and Main streets.

Police were told that the car, driven by Alvin Blake of Columbus, was proceeding north with the green light when Gilmore stepped into it.

Baruch Going To Europe, But Only For The Trip

NEW YORK, May 17—Bernard M. Baruch is leaving for Europe on July 1.

The last time the famous elder statesman and adviser to Presidents went abroad, in 1945, he was on a mission for his old friend, the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

This time Baruch is going as a private citizen. He will not have a diplomatic passport.

Baruch declined today to discuss his projected trip.

"I don't want to be a bore," Baruch protests. "I don't want to be regarded as a 'citizen fix-it.'"

It's a safe guess, though, that while Baruch is abroad he will come in contact with some of the world's leading statesmen, including Winston Churchill.

Baruch, although he will be 78 Aug. 19, has the viewpoint of a young man. He's alive, up-to-the-minute and as interested in rapidly changing world conditions as the youngest of America's statesmen.

Walking is one of Baruch's daily stints—a "must." He tries to get in at least three or four miles of hiking a day. Usually he walks from two to four hours each day.

It's REMARKABLE how many people know Baruch or recognize him as he strolls along most anywhere in Manhattan. Mail men, cab drivers and cops give him the "glad hand" or hail him with a pleasantry or two.

They smile when they observe the tall, erect, silver-haired Baruch swinging down the street, or when they spot him sitting on a bench in Central Park studying some government report.

When he arrives at the office, he's a busy man. "Big Shots" in government and business have been calling on Baruch for years for his good, honest, "cold turkey" advice.

Invariably, what Baruch recommends to them is the right thing to do—even if not politically expedient. More often than not, in fact almost always, what he advocates sooner or later comes to pass.

Baruch hasn't any office hours. He works all kinds of hours, usually from 9 a. m. "until time to call it a day." He sometimes works well on into the night. He quits when he feels tired.

He smilingly remarked that when they try to get him to do too much he "plays sick dog."

Complimented on his good physical condition, he blandly retorted:

"I take good care of myself." And he does. He arises early, takes a few bending exercises and works with his dumbbells for "four or five minutes."

THE WALK from his home to the office is about 10 blocks but he usually stretches it. He can't seem to stay away from Central Park and those benches.

So many people know him he has been forced to change recently to a New Park bench to do his sitting and thinking.

During the Winter months he rides horseback and shoots. He has a home in South Carolina, about 50 miles from Georgetown, and it's in that vicinity he shoots quail.

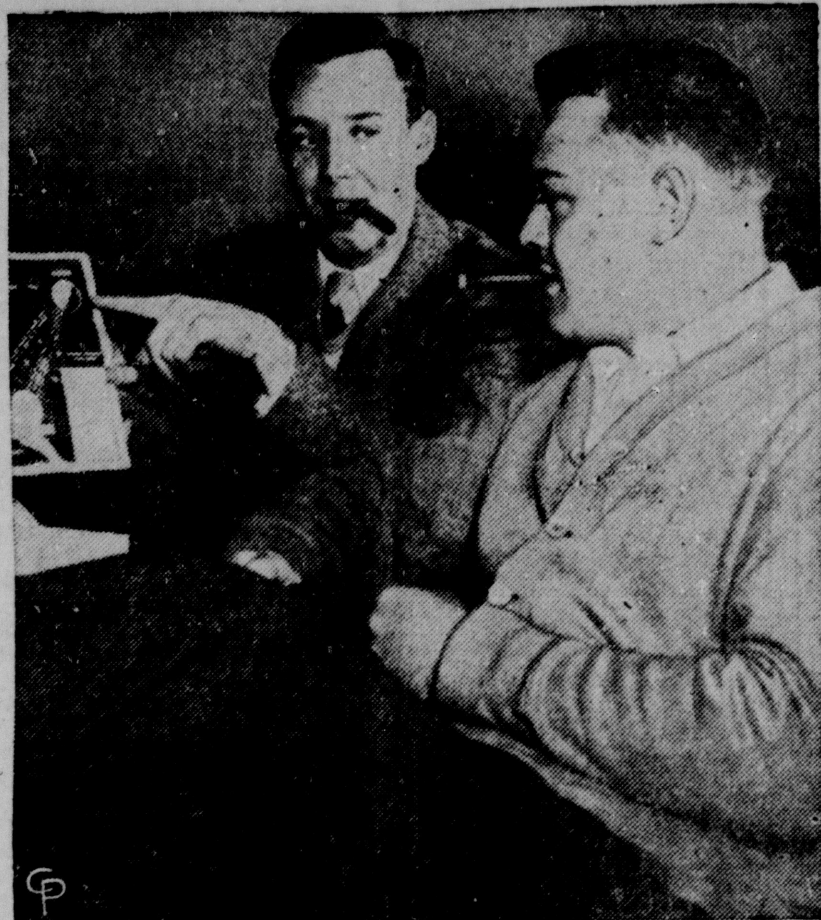

He admits he's a "pretty good shot." He has bagged 15 birds with 16 shells.

Baruch said he used to play golf but has given it up. He hurt his hand about 15 years ago and he experiences a little difficulty gripping a club.

This is how he hurt his hand: A crash between a taxi and an automobile occurred on a Manhattan street. Baruch was a spectator. The cabbie became abusive. Baruch admonished him.

The cabbie started out of his taxi toward Baruch. Calmly, Baruch—who was quite a boxer in his college days—put his glasses in his pocket. He beat the cabbie to the punch, hitting him with a right to the jaw. The cabbie went down. Baruch's trusty right has bothered him since.

Baruch doesn't drink or smoke. He eats at regular hours, and moderately. At 77 he has no paunch, and looks fit.

Federalists Set Tuesday Forum

CLEVELAND, May 17 — The United World Federalists of Cleveland will conduct a forum here tomorrow on the subject, "World War III or World Federalists."

Cord Meyer Jr., national president of the organization, and Henry B. Cabot, Boston attorney, both will address the Federalists.

Meyer, a New Yorker, recently was named one of the 10 outstanding young men of the year by the National Junior Chamber of Commerce. Cabot has championed the world federation cause in Massachusetts.

American Indians had no knowledge of iron prior to the arrival of Europeans. King Philip, sachem of the Mampnoags, was so impressed by the metal that he tried unsuccessfully to back an iron works with a deed of land. Had the deed been allowed, the Indian forces might have been much better armed in "King Philip's War" in 1675.

FREEDOM FOR WEYGAND
GEN. Maxime Weygand, former French commander-in-chief, has been freed of the charge of collaborating with the Nazis. This is the latest chapter in a career unusually full of ups and downs.
As aide to Marshal Foch in World War I, Weygand shared much of the credit for the final victory. When, following the war, Poland was overrun by the Russian armies, she called to France for help. The French sent Weygand, whose strategy won the Battle of Warsaw and saved Poland's national existence for another score of years.
These achievements made him the natural choice for commander-in-chief in the dark days of 1940. Gamelin, head of the armies, had enjoyed a great reputation in peace times, but in war showed himself unfit for the job. The world expected great things when Weygand replaced him.
Actually Weygand lost the war as quickly as Gamelin could have done. Opinions have differed whether he took hold too late, or whether his reactionary political views made him think a Nazi victory preferable to the triumph of the French republic. At any rate the Nazis spared him for a time, and allowed him to command the French armies in Africa. The Allied appeals to him to come to their aid fell on deaf ears. Later the Nazis came to distrust him, and kept him in captivity for the rest of the war.
Now he is freed of the charge of treason, but at 81 he has lost all his reputation for generalship.

FORTUNATE CHURCHILL
READERS of Winston Churchill's War Memoirs must conclude that he was one whom the gods loved. He was allowed a leading role in the winning side in one of the most momentous dramas to be enacted by man, and further he has been permitted to live long enough, with health and vigor enough, to write his own record.
Churchill, before the war era, was spared risking the royal family's antagonism during such a domestic crisis as Stanley Baldwin handled in forcing the abdication of Edward VIII. When Neville Chamberlain was seeking peace by his program of appeasing Hitler, Churchill was on the sidelines where he could observe and disagree. He lived to see his policy given the endorsement of victory, tasted the sweet triumph of war's end.
Churchill's American counterpart, the late President Roosevelt, having died before the end of the war, cannot present his story against criticisms such as those of Charles A. Beard in his recent book, "President Roosevelt and the Coming of War."
Despite post-war political defeat, Britain's former prime minister is fortunate as well as wise in human affairs.

Inside WASHINGTON
Plans for Presidential Coast-to-Coast Swing
Would Project Truman's Personality in Speeches
Special to Central Press
WASHINGTON—President Truman's political advisers want to project his personality and sincerity in Mr. Truman's speeches during his scheduled coast-to-coast railroad swing this month.
The president's successful effort to demonstrate his personality to an audience of editors in an unprepared 30-minute address in Washington started the political advisers to thinking in terms of repeat performances.
Actually, the editors learned what Washington officialdom has long known—that Mr. Truman's warm and human approach to problems of the day are best depicted when he is speaking before a group where he knows his remarks will not be published and not quoted directly.
Of course, it is not always possible for a chief executive to speak spontaneously because of the delicate nature of some of the subjects with which he deals. Foreign affairs particularly call for studied words and phrases, prepared in advance so that no unintended diplomatic slight is made against another country.
What may be evolved as a solution is something on this order: The president will speak from notes on some occasions, rather than from completely prepared texts. This way, he would discuss domestic and in some cases, foreign situations generally, in his own words. However, he would state firm administration positions by reading completely prepared sentences or paragraphs into his otherwise extemporaneous addresses.
● STOP STASSEN DRIVE—Harold E. Stassen's write-in victory in the Pennsylvania presidential primary has set in motion an all-out drive to stop the former Minnesota governor at the Republican "favorite son" delegations, which control more than 200 delegate votes.

George E. Sokolsky's
These Days
The principal personal preoccupation of an Oriental is "face." The Russians are, of course, Eurasians and it is not always clear which side of them they exhibit at a particular moment, the Western European or the Oriental Nomadic. But "face" always bothers them.
They dare not even permit the impression to exist that they have been worsted. They have risked great gains in friendship and acceptance by small and nasty acts which added slightly to their face.
It is now obvious that Soviet Russia has lost the "cold war." That was clear in the French and Italian elections, in the Marshall Plan and in the efforts that are being made to establish a League of Western European nations.
Russia's objectives in the cold war were:
1. To consolidate Russia's control of European countries east of the Elbe;
2. To weaken the Anglo-American position on the continent of Europe;
3. To lay the foundations for establishing Communist states in Western Europe;
4. To isolate the United States diplomatically while impoverishing the Western European countries economically;
5. To maintain disturbances throughout Asia, from the Mediterranean to the Pacific;
6. To isolate Chiang Kai-shek and to drive the Americans out of Korea;
7. To eliminate "majority rule" in international councils, particularly wherever it may appear in UN, and failing that, to kill off UN, which the Russians regard as a bloc of Western nations anyhow;
8. So to increase the cost to the American taxpayer that he would
a. Refuse to support his government's policy;
b. That a neo-isolationism would develop in the United States which would mean the withdrawal of the United States from Europe and Asia, leaving both areas to Soviet Russia.
Soviet Russia, in broad outline, held this position throughout the war, never quite becoming an ally, remaining aloof from consultation and joint action, and finally, at Teheran and Yalta, insisting upon the rights of the conqueror in terms more stringent and grievous than appeared even in the Molotov-Ribbentrop Pact. This attitude on the part of the Russians, Roosevelt either failed to recognize as characteristic imperialism, or having recognized it, dared do nothing about it in time of war, hoping that final victory might strengthen his hand. American policy, from Roosevelt's death until James Byrnes's acknowledgment of failure, was throughout an acceptance of the Russian program of conquest.
True, no American enjoys the cost of all our activities; yet the country has stood behind all the demands of the Army, Navy and Air Force. In fact, the Congress has gone further than the President in support of the armed forces. No isolationist movement has developed among the people, except among the Communists and their fellow-travelers.
The United States is mentally and spiritually prepared even for war—a war that no one wants.
The Russians know that what is written here is true and they would like to recede from an untenable position without losing "face." So they say that the United States wants peace. That is true—but it is peace with dignity and honor.

"The Authority on Authorities"
ASKS THEM FOR GIFTS
WHEN you make a double jump in your partner's originally-bid major suit to force your side into a game contract in that declaration, you give the opponents much less information than if you had forced with a jump in some other suit. Even a jump in No Trumps risks giving them additional specific information, as your partner may respond to it with a bid of another suit. Possession of side-suit facts frequently tells the opponents what to lead against you, whereas lack of them compels a guess on their part which in effect invites them to give you gifts by a wrong lead.

At Table 1, the North-South pair did not consider anything an absolute force to game except a jump in a new suit, so 3-Spades by North would not have been strong enough to show positively that a game contract should be reached, if South had a minimum. At Table 2, such a jump was considered an absolute guarantee of enough strength for the pair to get into a game, and also guaranteed at least four trumps.
The bidding at Table 1 practically obliged West to lead the only unbid suit, clubs. As a consequence, the defenders got the first two tricks and the declarer only one extra.
The defenders at Table 2 knew nothing about what were their opponents' side suits. West therefore had to lead in complete darkness. Hearts not having been bid, he reckoned that major suit was a little more likely to be his partner's than the minor clubs. So he opened the heart 8. After winning that, South scored three tricks in spades, two more in hearts, ruffed a heart and on the diamonds discarded a club, so that he took all but one trick, beating the other North-South pair because of better bidding, not better play.

Looking Back In Pickaway County
FIVE YEARS AGO
Williamsport Methodist church had its annual homecoming Sunday with meetings both morning and afternoon and a basket dinner at noon.
Ohio History Day will be observed this Fall with a radio program to be conducted instead of the annual gathering at Logan Elm state park.
Pickaway County health officials have urged a "clean up".
First, the 73-man Pennsylvania delegation is unpledged, despite the Stassen win, and is controlled by Senator Edward Martin, who would get the votes on the first ballot as a "favorite son." Martin, a Thomas E. Dewey man, can be expected to release his delegates to the New York governor.
New Jersey's 30 to 38 delegates are pledged to Gov. Alfred E. Driscoll, who may release them to either Senator Robert A. Taft or Dewey. Illinois, with 60 delegates, is pledged to Gov. Dwight H. Green, but the governor is expected to release them to Taft or, possibly, to Dewey.
California's huge delegation is pledged to Gov. Earl Warren, who will hold the delegates in line until his case is hopeless. Then, Warren is expected to "trade" in an effort to get a western man appointed interior secretary in the next GOP cabinet.
The stop-Stassen strength may prove inadequate, political experts say, unless there is some sort of a convention deal between Dewey and Taft, both of whom are said to regard Stassen as a "Johnny come lately."
Meanwhile, Stassen's gaining nine delegates in the Ohio primary is interpreted differently by his backers and those of Taft. Both sides have claimed the result of the primary in Ohio (Taft's ball-wick) as a "victory."
● DRAFT—The consensus on Capitol Hill is that the House would pass a draft bill, but isn't likely to go along with the newly proposed measure combining the draft with universal military training.
While 25 members of the House armed services committee are known to favor the draft alone, the committee has made it clear that members won't OK the so-called "draft training" bill.
The new measure doesn't hold appeal largely because of the strong opposition in Congress to UMT. Many legislators would vote for the draft on the theory that selective service is temporary while UMT would be permanent.
● ATOMIC APPOINTMENTS—President Truman beat Senator Bourke Hickenlooper (R), Iowa, chairman of the congressional atomic committee, to the draw by reappointing present members of the atomic energy commission whose terms do not expire until Aug. 1.
The fact is that Hickenlooper long ago had readied a "non-political" bill to extend the existing terms for 11 months, but never got around to introducing it.
Mr. Truman's action, of course, takes the ball away from Hickenlooper, and if the senator forces a fight to delay the reappointments, he may face charges of "playing politics."

CHAPTER TWENTY-NINE
ANNE stepped into the pine-paneled office and dropped John's sweater from her shoulders. It was quiet here, as she had known it would be. Quiet and peaceful. She looked around. Everything was in order the way it always was. The fire laid ready for a match. The book-lined walls tidy. The desk neat. The little calendar pad filled, as usual, with reminding notes.
She moved across the room and sat down in John's chair. Here he held his conferences and interviews. Here he planned his talks and wrote his speeches. Here he conferred with men from all classes and walks of life who were interested in the land.
"It's my profession—my religion—my life—"
That was what he had said so many weeks ago and she knew now what it meant. It meant working with all his mind and body and soul to help America get started back on a sound economic path. It meant a lifetime of toil, but John never minded that. Would he mind that Alec was going to take no interest in his work? That he wanted no part of it? That he had plans of his own?
Plans that don't include me. She knew that clearly here in this quiet room. Alec was trying to escape, not only from Stone House, but from her, too.
Well, did it matter? She sat very still, her hands folded on the desk blotter before her, her brown eyes wide and grave. No, it did not matter in the least. For months it hadn't mattered but she had thought that coming here to this old ancestral home had brought Alec back to her and it hadn't at all. What it had done was bring John to her. Alec had left her heart long ago. It was John she loved. Not Alec. It had never been Alec, really. And it had always been John.
"I feel as if something were going to happen—" Way back then, on her arrival, she had felt the truth but only today was she fully realizing it. Only today—this hour—this moment—here in this cottage where John's spirit prevailed.
She looked down at her clasped hands and then slowly unclasped them and laid them flat on the desk before her. Lovingly she held them there. Then, lovingly and lightly, she touched everything before her that was John's. His pen. His pencils. His white pad. There was devotion in her touch, and a lingering farewell.
For she would have to leave Stone House now. Leave it and never come back. She saw that as clearly as she had come to see everything else in this short hour. It was too bad. It was terribly too bad. But she had met John too late.
And then she heard the rattle of the station wagon in the distance and she went to the window and looked out. Yes, there it was coming down the driveway and around the house to the barns at the back. John was returned from where he had gone. Only she didn't need him now to tell her what to do. She had found out by herself.
She watched him spring from the car and start for the kitchen door. But before he got there, almost as if he were impelled by her watching eyes and her thoughts, he paused, turned, and then started toward the cottage.
She drew a quick, frightened breath. He must not find her here! What would he think? She must get away before he came! She looked around hastily. She would slip out of the rear door as he came in at the front, she told herself. She would go through the pines to the end of the garden and so to the barns and back to the house that way and he would never know she had been here.
While she waited, holding the door ajar, she saw Auntie come hurrying out of the kitchen at the big house and heard her shrill following cry.
"Mist' John! Mist' John! Miz Dornus want you! Madame Kingsley got took bad, Mist' John! Come quick!"
John turned again and ran back toward Stone House. A moment later, as soon as he had disappeared within its doors, Anne, her heart pounding, followed him on flying feet.
She came into the great front hall but John had already disappeared upstairs. She stood listening a moment to the sounds from above; the low, grave voices, the hurrying footsteps. Something serious had happened. What was it?
A door opened overhead and Julia's anxious voice came to her ears. "Try the doctor again, Alec. Maybe they've located him now."
She looked up. He was coming down the stairs. She started toward him, a question on her lips, when the telephone rang as she was passing it.
"I'll take it."
Alec came down, his pace slowing. He would have to wait now until the line was free, unless that was the doctor himself. He stood, a few feet behind Anne, listening to what she said.
"Yes—yes—yes—Who did you say is speaking?"
Alec's voice came sharply. "Is it for me?"
She turned toward him. "I don't know. It's long distance—" She spoke into the telephone again. "Yes, that's right—Yes, this is Stone House. Yes, he's here. Who? Who? Oh!"
He strode the short space between them but not before he had heard the distant speaker's voice and had seen Anne's face quicken first into astonishment, then disbelief, then quiet, proud scorn.
She held the instrument out to him, her brown eyes level, her voice calm.
"It's your wife," she said. "Calling as a surprise from Honolulu." Anne went up the stairs with her head held high. Behind her she could hear Alec. "Chloe? Why in the devil did you... Yes, it was sweet of you, of course... Yes, it was a surprise, all right, but... No, nothing's wrong except that this is a most inconvenient time... I said inconvenient... Why, because there's sickness here... Sickness... She could imagine the dark discomfiture of his face, the anger of his heart. Well, she was angry, too. And outraged and humiliated. But she mustn't think about it yet. Not until she got away from here.
She came to the top of the stairs and paused a moment. Her instinct was to rush up to her room, pack and leave as quickly as possible. But first she must see Julia. She could not leave without seeing Julia. And Madame Kingsley, too. She had nearly forgotten about Madame Kingsley. She must find out what was wrong with her, of course. So she moved along the hall to Mrs. Kingsley's room where the door stood open, and, rapping lightly, she stepped inside. Julia and John were over next to the bed on which Julia's mother lay, an inert figure with half-closed eyes, whose labored breathing sounded frighteningly in the quiet room.
Julia nodded to her and Anne crossed over to them. "What's happened?"
"A stroke," Julia whispered. "I'm so sorry. What can I do?"
"Nothing. Nothing at all. Did Alec get the doctor?"
"He's phoning now, I think."
They stood in silence together for a moment. Then Julia said, "She mentioned not feeling well this noon, do you remember? She said she had a headache. I suppose I should have realized that that was a warning signal."
John spoke quickly. "Even if you had, could you have stopped this?" He put his arm around her. "Don't, mother."
Anne said, "John is right. You've always been beautiful to her. Always." She hesitated. "It's one of the things I shall like to remember after I'm gone."
Julia turned her head and Anne saw her waiting. "What do you mean?" she asked, after a moment.
The breathing on the bed went on in unbroken heavy rhythm. They could speak above her and she did not hear. Anne said, "Alec is married. I just found out."
There was a moment of stillness during which she felt John's compassionate tenderness like an arm about her although he never moved. Then Julia murmured without surprise, "So."
"I must go," Anne went on, not looking at them, looking at Madame Kingsley on her pillow. "If I can do nothing here, I'd like to go right away."
Julia's hand came out and took Anne's in a close clasp. "I was afraid—" she began and closed herself. "I don't need to tell you how I feel. It's a great disappointment. I hope you won't."
"I'm all right," Anne interrupted. (To Be Continued)

"The Authority on Authorities"

ASKS THEM FOR GIFTS

WHEN you make a double jump in your partner's originally bid major suit to force your side into a game contract in that declaration, you give the opponents much less information than if you had forced with a jump in some other suit. Even a jump in No Trumps risks giving them additional specific information, as your partner may respond to it with a bid of another suit. Possession of side-suit facts frequently tells the opponents what to lead against you, whereas lack of them compels a guess on their part which in effect invites them to give you gifts by a wrong lead.

At Table 1, the North-South pair did not consider anything an absolute force to game except a jump in a new suit, so 3-Spades by North would not have been strong enough to show positively that a game contract should be reached, if South had a minimum. At Table 2, such a jump was considered an absolute guarantee of enough strength for the pair to get into a game, and also guaranteed at least four trumps.

The bidding at Table 1 practically obliged West to lead the only unbid suit, clubs. As a consequence, the defenders got the first two tricks and the declarer only one extra.

The defenders at Table 2 knew nothing about what were their opponents' side suits. West therefore had to lead in complete darkness. Hearts not having been bid, he reckoned that major suit was a little more likely to be his partner's than the minor clubs. So he opened the heart 8. After winning that, South scored three tricks in spades, two more in hearts, ruffed a heart and on the diamonds discarded a club, so that he took all but one trick, leaving the other North-South pair because of better bidding, not better play.

CHAPTER TWENTY-NINE

ANNE stepped into the pin-paneled office and dropped John's sweater from her shoulders. It was quiet here, as she had known it would be. Quiet and peaceful. She looked around. Everything was in order the way it always was. The fire laid ready for a match. The book-lined walls tidy. The desk neat. The little calendar pad filled, as usual, with reminding notes.

She moved across the room and sat down in John's chair. Here he held his conferences and interviews. Here he planned his talks and wrote his speeches. Here he conferred with men from all classes and walks of life who were interested in the land.

"It's my profession—my religion—my life—"

That was what he had said so many weeks ago and she knew now what it meant. Here he worked with all his mind and body and soul to help America get started back on a sound economic path. It meant a lifetime of toil, but John never minded that. Would he mind that Alec was going to take no interest in his work? That he wanted no part of it? That he had plans of his own?

Plans that don't include me. She knew that clearly here in this quiet room. Alec was trying to escape, not only from Stone House, but from her, too.

Well, did it matter? She sat very still, her hands folded on the desk blotter before her, her brown eyes wide and grave. No, it did not matter in the least. For months it hadn't mattered but she had not recognized the fact. She had thought that coming here to this old ancestral home had brought Alec back to her and it hadn't at all. What it had done was bring John to her. Alec had left her heart long ago. It was John she loved. Not Alec. It had never been Alec, really. And it had always been John.

"I feel as if something were going to happen—"

Way back then, on her arrival, she had felt the truth but only today was she fully realizing it. Only today—this hour—this moment—here in this cottage where John's spirit prevailed.

She looked down at her clasped hands and then slowly unclasped them and laid them flat on the desk before her. Lovingly she held them there. Then, lovingly and lightly, she touched everything before her that was John's. His pen. His pencils. His white pad. There was devotion in her touch, and a lingering farewell.

For she would have to leave Stone House now. Leave it and never come back. She saw that as clearly as she had come to see everything else in this short half hour. It was too bad. It was terribly too bad. But she had met John too late.

And then she heard the rattle of the station wagon in the distance and she went to the window and looked out. Yes, there it was coming down the driveway and around the house to the barns at the back. John was returned from where he had gone. Only she didn't need him now to tell her what to do. She had found out by herself.

She watched him spring from the car and start for the kitchen door. But before he got there, almost as if he were impelled by her watching eyes and her thoughts, he paused, turned, and then started toward the cottage.

She drew a quick, frightened breath. He must not find her here! What would he think? She must get away before he came! She looked around hastily. She would slip out of the rear door as he came in at the front, she told herself. She would go through the pines to the end of the garden and so to the barns and back to the house that way and he would never know she had been here.

While she waited, holding the door ajar, she saw Auntie come hurrying out of the kitchen at the big house and heard her shrill following cry.

"Mist' John! Mist' John! Miz Doremus want you! Madam Kingsley got took bad. Mist' John! Come quick!"

John turned again and ran back toward Stone House. A moment later, as soon as he had disappeared within its doors, Anne, her heart pounding, followed him on flying feet.

She came into the great front hall but John had already disappeared upstairs. She stood listening a moment to the sounds from above: the low, grave voices, the hurrying footfalls. Something serious had happened. What was it?

A door opened overhead and Julia's anxious voice came to her ears. "Try the doctor again, Alec. Maybe they've located him now." She looked up. He was coming down the stairs. She started toward him, a question on her lips, when the telephone rang as she was passing it.

"I'll take it."

She stepped over to the table. Alec came down, his pace slowing. He would have to wait now until the line was free, unless that was the doctor himself. He stood, a few feet behind Anne, listening to what she said.

"Yes—yes—yes—"

Who did you say is speaking?"

Alec's voice came sharply. "Is it for me?"

She turned toward him. "I don't know. It's long distance—"

She spoke into the telephone again. "Yes, that's right— Yes, this is Stone House. Yes, he's here. Who? Who? Oh!"

He strode the short space between them but not before he had heard the distant speaker's voice and had seen Anne's face quicken first into astonishment, then disbelief, then quiet, proud scorn.

She held the instrument out to him, her brown eyes level, her voice calm.

"It's your wife," she said. "Calling as a surprise from Honolulu."

Anne went up the stairs with her head held high. Behind her she could hear Alec. "Chloe? Why in the devil did you... Yes, it was sweet of you, of course... Yes, it was a surprise, all right, but... No, nothing's wrong except that this is a most inconvenient time... I said inconvenient... Why, because there's sickness here... Sickness... She could imagine the dark discomfiture of his face, the anger of his heart. Well, she was angry, too. And outraged and humiliated. But she mustn't think about it. Yet. Not until she got away from here.

She came to the top of the stairs and paused a moment. Her instinct was to rush up to her room, pack and leave as quickly as possible. But first she must see Julia. She could not leave without seeing Julia. And Madame Kingsley, too. She had nearly forgotten about Madame Kingsley. She must find out what was wrong with her, of course. So she moved along the hall to Mrs. Kingsley's room where the door stood open, and, rapping lightly, she stepped inside. Julia and John were over next to the bed on which Julia's mother lay, an inert figure with half-closed eyes, whose labored breathing sounded frighteningly in the quiet room.

Julia nodded to her and Anne crossed over to them. "What's happened?"

"A stroke," Julia whispered. "I'm so sorry. What can I do?"

"Nothing. Nothing at all. Did Alec get the doctor?"

"He's phoning now, I think."

They stood in silence together for a moment. Then Julia said, "She mentioned something well this noon, do you remember? She said she had a headache. I suppose I should have realized that that was a warning signal."

John spoke quickly. "Even if you had, could you have stopped this?" He put his arm around her. "Don't, mother."

Anne said, "John is right. You've always been beautiful to her. Always." She hesitated. "It's one of the things I shall like to remember after I'm gone."

Julia turned her head and Anne saw her waiting. "What do you mean?" she asked, after a moment.

The breathing on the bed went on in unbroken heavy rhythm. They could speak above her and she did not hear. Anne said, "Alec is married. I just found out."

There was a moment of stillness during which she felt John's compassionate tenderness like an arm about her, although he never moved. Then Julia murmured without surprise, "So."

"I must go," Anne went on, not looking at them, looking at Madame Kingsley on her pillow. "If I can do nothing here, I'd like to go right away."

Julia's hand came out and took Anne's in a close clasp. "I was—"

"I was—"

"I don't need to tell you how I feel. It's a great disappointment. I hope you won't—"

"I'm all right," Anne interrupted.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY

Motion Picture Actress Maureen O'Sullivan, French Actor Jean Gabin and Author Frederic Prokosh are celebrating natal anniversaries today.

IT HAPPENED TODAY

On May 17, 1939, Canada welcomed the visit of King George VI and Queen Elizabeth of England. On this date in 1760, the siege of Quebec ended by capitulation of the French, and Great Britain was left in possession of all Canada. Norway gained independence on this date in 1814, with the adoption of its constitution. Sandro Botticelli, Florentine painter, died in 1510, and Edward Jenner, English physician and developer of vaccination, was born in 1749.

MODERN MANNERS

If a girl is asked to be maid of honor at a friend's wedding but her fiancé is not asked to act as best man, she should not be upset, as attendants are not paired off at weddings. Even if her fiancé was not asked to take part in the wedding, she need not feel slighted.

YOUR FUTURE

This time is good for contacts, and also for festivities that can prove expensive and exciting. For your next year you are advised to tone up your nervous system and watch your diet; also avoid overstrain, both mental and physical. Peruse all documents carefully and keep them in safe custody, so that no trouble or loss may occur.

HOW'D YOU MAKE OUT?

Plans for Presidential Coast-to-Coast Swing

Would Project Truman's Personality in Speeches

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—President Truman's political advisers want to project his personality and sincerity in Mr. Truman's speeches during his scheduled coast-to-coast railroad swing this month.

The president's successful effort to demonstrate his personality to an audience of editors in an unprepared 30-minute address in Washington started the political advisers to thinking in terms of repeat performances.

Actually, the editors learned what Washington officialdom has long known—that Mr. Truman's warm and human approach to problems of the day are best depicted when he is speaking before a group where he knows his remarks will not be published and not quoted directly.

Of course, it is not always possible for a chief executive to speak spontaneously because of the delicate nature of some of the subjects with which he deals. Foreign affairs particularly call for studied words and phrases, prepared in advance so that no unintended diplomatic slight is made against another country.

What may be evolved as a solution is something on this order: The president will speak from notes on some occasions, rather than from completely prepared texts. This way, he would discuss domestic and in some cases, foreign situations generally, in his own words. However, he would state firm administration positions by reading completely prepared sentences or paragraphs into his otherwise extemporaneous addresses.

● STOP STASSEN DRIVE—Harold E. Stassen's write-in victory in the Pennsylvania presidential primary has set in motion an all-out drive to stop the former Minnesota governor at the Republican national convention.

The strength of the stop-Stassen drive will be in the unpledged "favorite son" delegations, which control more than 200 delegate votes.

President Truman

First, the 73-man Pennsylvania delegation is unpledged, despite the Stassen win, and is controlled by Senator Edward Martin, who would get the votes on the first ballot as a "favorite son." Martin, a Thomas E. Dewey man, can be expected to release his delegates to the New York governor.

New Jersey's 30 to 38 delegates are pledged to Gov. Alfred E. Driscoll, who may release them to either Senator Robert A. Taft or Dewey. Illinois, with 60 delegates, is pledged to Gov. Dwight H. Green, but the governor is expected to release them to Taft or, possibly, to Dewey.

California's huge delegation is pledged to Gov. Earl Warren, who will hold the delegates in line until his case is hopeless. Then, Warren is expected to "trade" in an effort to get a western man appointed interior secretary in the next GOP cabinet.

The stop-Stassen strength may prove inadequate, political experts say, unless there is some sort of a convention deal between Dewey and Taft, both of whom are said to regard Stassen as a "Johnny come lately."

Meanwhile, Stassen's gaining nine delegates in the Ohio primary is interpreted differently by his backers and those of Taft. Both sides have claimed the result of the primary in Ohio (Taft's ball-wick) as a "victory."

● DRAFT—The consensus on Capitol Hill is that the House would pass a draft bill, but isn't likely to go along with the newly proposed measure combining the draft with universal military training.

While 25 members of the House armed services committee are known to favor the draft alone, the committee has made it clear that members won't OK the so-called "draft training" bill.

The new measure doesn't hold appeal largely because of the strong opposition in Congress to UMT. Many legislators would vote for the draft on the theory that selective service is temporary while UMT would be permanent.

● ATOMIC APPOINTMENTS—President Truman beat Senator Bourke Hickenlooper (R), Iowa, chairman of the congressional atomic committee, to the draw by reappointing present members of the atomic energy commission whose terms do not expire until Aug. 1.

The fact is that Hickenlooper long ago had readied a "non-political" bill to extend the existing terms for 11 months, but never got around to introducing it.

Mr. Truman's action of course, takes the ball away from Hickenlooper, and if the senator forces a fight to delay the reappointments, he may face charges of "playing politics."

Localite Weds Hamilton Pastor Sunday Afternoon

At an open nuptial church ceremony Sunday afternoon, Maxine Gray, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allen H. Gray of Watt street became the bride of the Rev. Clarence L. Shook, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Shook of Springfield.

The Rev. Harley Bennett and the Rev. George W. Smith of Circleville officiated for the ceremony at 3:30 p. m. in Church of Christ in Christian Union, before an altar embellished in baskets of white gladiolas and carnations, palms and two seven-branch candelabra.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride selected for the occasion a white satin gown, designed with a marquisette yoke, ruffles and self-covered buttons extending down the back of the bodice. The sleeves tapered into points over the wrists and the full skirt terminated in a train of crystallized orange blossoms. She carried a colonial bouquet of white carnations tied with streamers of white satin ribbons.

Mrs. Cecil Gray of Columbus, sister-in-law of the bride, was her only attendant. She was gowned in yellow marquisette with a corresponding headress. Her colonial bouquet was fashioned from talisman roses. The only jewelry worn by the bride and matron of honor were single strands of pearls.

Cecil Gray of Columbus was best man for his brother-in-law. Seating the guests were Harold Hayes of Hamilton, Harold Shook of Springfield, brother of the groom, and Warren Gray of Circleville, brother of the bride.

Nolan Golden of Hamilton sang, "Because," "Always," "Together With Jesus" and "The Lord's Prayer." He was accompanied by Arthur Flick of Hamilton.

The brides' parents were hosts to relatives and friends for a reception immediately following the ceremony.

Refreshments were served from the bride's table centered by a three-tiered wedding cake topped by the traditional bride and bridegroom flanked by burning white tapers.

Mrs. Gray received her guests in a bemberg print dress with pink accessories and a shoulder bouquet of pink carnations. Mrs. Shook, mother of the bridegroom, wore a corsage of white carnations pinned to the neckline of her black dressmaker suit.

When the new Mr. and Mrs. Shook left for a wedding trip to Niagara Falls and Canada, the bride had changed to a loganberry colored suit with accessories of navy blue and white. She pinned white carnations at the lapel of her suit.

The bride was graduated by Walnut Township high school and has been associated with the J. C. Penney Co., Circleville.

The Rev. Mr. Shook, a graduate of Springfield high school, attended the Chicago Evangelistic Institute, and received his bachelor's degree from God's Bible School, Cincinnati. He is director of the Youth for Christ organization in Hamilton, and is pastor of Valley Chapel Community church near that city.

Personals

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph W. Heistand and son, Billy, of McArthur were guests over the weekend with Mrs. Dorothy Gerhardt of East Mound street.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Morris and children of Dayton spent the weekend in Circleville with their parents, Mrs. Fanny Morris and George G. Adkins.

Miss Myrtle B. Hedges of Lancaster was a weekend guest in the home of her brother-in-law, Charles B. Stofor, West High street.

Williamsport Alumni Has Dinner Dance

Approximately 160 persons were present for the Williamsport alumni banquet Saturday evening served in the Sulphur Springs pavilion.

Ferns, lighted tapers and a false ceiling fashioned of the class colors, red and white provided a colorful setting for the banquet prepared and served by Women's Society of Christian Service of Williamsport Methodist church.

Marion Steinhouser, outgoing president, presented the newly elected officers; Mrs. Donald Lee McDill, president; Russell McDill, vice-president; James Carter, second vice-president; Mrs. Warren Straley, secretary; and Charles Rose, treasurer.

Group singing opened the program with Joseph Varney Jr., serving as toastmaster. Judson K. Lanman, school superintendent, presented the class of 1948. The welcoming address was given by Mrs. Bessie Schleich and the response was by Donald Schleich.

Toasts were offered by Warren Straley, George Weldon Smith, and Clement Ater. Blake's orchestra played later in the evening for a 50-50 dance.

Elaine Radcliffe Becomes Bride Of Arthur K. Bowman

Before a floral banked mantle flanked by seven-branched candelabra Sunday afternoon in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Radcliffe of Northridge road, Miss Elaine Radcliffe, of Columbus exchanged nuptial vows with Arthur K. Bowman of East Franklin street.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elzie Radcliffe of West Broad street, Columbus, and her husband is a son of Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Bowman of East Franklin street.

The Rev. Carl L. Wilson, pastor of First Evangelical United Brethren church, officiated for the double-ring ceremony at half after four o'clock.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride repeated her vows in an aqua crepe street length frock fashioned with a high neckline and a side draped skirt. She wore a halo of pink roses surrounded by fiesta brown veiling and a double strand of pearls, a gift of the bridegroom. A cluster of pink rosebuds topped her white Bille.

Her sister-in-law, Mrs. Radcliffe, was matron of honor in a grey crepe dress made along similar lines of that worn by the bride. Her corsage was of yellow roses.

David Bolender of Circleville was best man.

Music for the occasion was presented by Miss Lucille Kirkwood. She also accompanied Miss Margaret Cobb who sang "Through The Years" and "Always". As the couple knelt before the altar embellished in white snapdragons, gladiola and carnations, she sang Malott's "Lord's Prayer".

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held for the wedding party and guests.

Mrs. Radcliffe, mother of the bride, chose for the occasion an aqua crepe dress. The bridegroom's mother was attired in a green print dress. Both mothers had corsages of yellow roses.

After a short wedding trip the new Mr. and Mrs. Bowman will make their home at 416 East Franklin street.

Localite Weds Hamilton Pastor Sunday Afternoon

At an open nuptial church ceremony Sunday afternoon, Maxine Gray, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allen H. Gray of Watt street became the bride of the Rev. Clarence L. Shook, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Shook of Springfield.

The Rev. Harley Bennett and the Rev. George W. Smith of Circleville officiated for the ceremony at 3:30 p. m. in Church of Christ in Christian Union, before an altar embellished in baskets of white gladiolas and carnations, palms and two seven-branch candelabra.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride selected for the occasion a white satin gown, designed with a marquisette yoke, ruffles and self-covered buttons extending down the back of the bodice. The sleeves tapered into points over the wrists and the full skirt terminated in a long train. Her fingertip veil of illusion softly fell from a tiara of crystallized orange blossoms. She carried a colonial bouquet of white carnations tied with streamers of white satin ribbons.

Mrs. Cecil Gray of Columbus, sister-in-law of the bride, was her only attendant. She was gowned in yellow marquisette with a corresponding headpiece. Her colonial bouquet was fashioned from talisman roses. The only jewelry worn by the bride and matron of honor were single strands of pearls.

Cecil Gray of Columbus was best man for his brother-in-law. Seating the guests were Harold Hayes of Hamilton, brother of the groom, and Warren Gray of Circleville, brother of the bride. Nolan Golden of Hamilton sang, "Because," "Always," "Together With Jesus" and "The Lord's Prayer." He was accompanied by Arthur Flick of Hamilton.

The brides' parents were hosts to relatives and friends for a reception immediately following the ceremony.

Refreshments were served from the bride's table centered by a three-tiered wedding cake topped by the traditional bride and bridegroom flanked by burning white tapers.

Mrs. Gray received her guests in a bemberg print dress with pink accessories and a shoulder bouquet of pink carnations. Mrs. Shook, mother of the bridegroom, wore a corsage of white carnations pinned to the neckline of her black dressmaker suit.

When the new Mr. and Mrs. Shook left for a wedding trip to Niagara Falls and Canada, the bride had changed to a loganberry colored suit with accessories of navy blue and white. She pinned white carnations at the lapel of her suit.

The bride was graduated by Walnut Township high school and has been associated with the J. C. Penney Co., Circleville.

The Rev. Mr. Shook, a graduate of Springfield high school, attended the Chicago Evangelistic Institute, and received his bachelor's degree from God's Bible School, Cincinnati. He is director of the Youth for Christ organization in Hamilton, and is pastor of Valley Chapel Community church near that city.

Personals

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph W. Heistand and son, Billy, of McArthur were guests over the weekend with Mrs. Dorothy Gerhardt of East Mound street.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Morris and children of Dayton spent the weekend in Circleville with their parents, Mrs. Fanny Morris and George G. Adkins.

Miss Myrtle B. Hedges of Lancaster was a weekend guest in the home of her brother-in-law, Charles B. Stofor, West High street.

Williamsport Alumni Has Dinner Dance

Approximately 160 persons were present for the Williamsport alumni banquet Saturday evening served in the Sulphur Springs pavilion.

Ferns, lighted tapers and a false ceiling fashioned of the class colors, red and white provided a colorful setting for the banquet prepared and served by Women's Society of Christian Service of Williamsport Methodist church.

Marion Steinhouser, outgoing president, presented the newly elected officers; Mrs. Donald Lee McDill, president; Russell McDill, vice-president; James Carter, second vice-president; Mrs. Warren Straley, secretary; and Charles Rose, treasurer.

Group singing opened the program with Joseph Varney Jr., serving as toastmaster. Judson K. Lanman, school superintendent, presented the class of 1948. The welcoming address was given by Mrs. Bessie Schleich and the response was by Donald Schleich.

Toasts were offered by Warren Straley, George Weldon Smith, and Clement Ater. Blake's orchestra played later in the evening for a 50-50 dance.

Elaine Radcliffe Becomes Bride Of Arthur K. Bowman

Before a floral banked mantle flanked by seven-branched candelabra Sunday afternoon in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Radcliffe of Northridge road, Miss Elaine Radcliffe, of Columbus exchanged nuptial vows with Arthur K. Bowman of East Franklin street.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elzie Radcliffe of West Broad street, Columbus, and her husband is a son of Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Bowman of East Franklin street.

The Rev. Carl L. Wilson, pastor of First Evangelical United Brethren church, officiated for the double-ring ceremony at half after four o'clock.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride repeated her vows in an aqua crepe street length frock fashioned with a high neckline and a side draped skirt. She wore a halo of pink roses surrounded by fiesta brown veiling and a double strand of pearls, a gift of the bridegroom. A cluster of pink rosebuds topped her white Bible.

Her sister-in-law, Mrs. Radcliffe, was matron of honor in a grey crepe dress made along similar lines of that worn by the bride. Her corsage was of yellow roses.

David Bolender of Circleville was best man.

Music for the occasion was presented by Miss Lucille Kirk.

Sewing Club To Meet

Mrs. Fred Newhouse has invited members of the Art Sewing Club to meet in her home, East Main street, at 7:30 p. m. Wednesday.

wood. She also accompanied Miss Margaret Cobb who sang "Through The Years" and "Always". As the couple knelt before the altar embellished in white snapdragons, gladiola and carnations, she sang Malott's "Lord's Prayer".

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held for the wedding party and guests.

Mrs. Radcliffe, mother of the bride, chose for the occasion an aqua crepe dress. The bridegroom's mother was attired in a green print dress. Both mothers had corsages of yellow roses.

After a short wedding trip the new Mr. and Mrs. Bowman will make their home at 416 East Franklin street.

Sen. Taft Leads In Big Three

Dewey, Stassen Pledges Trail

WASHINGTON, May 17—Sen. Robert A. Taft, of Ohio, holds a sturdy lead today in pledged delegates to the Republican presidential convention, now five weeks away.

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, of New York, is a strong second with Harold E. Stassen, of Minnesota, running behind in third place.

A poll by International News Service shows the first ballot strength of the "Big Three" in the GOP race to be:

Taft, 301 delegates; Dewey, 256 delegates; Stassen, 134 delegates.

Republican followers of "dark horse" possibilities and "favorite son" candidates now hold the balance of power in the June 21 convention. There are no signs, however, of any concerted move by these groups either to one of the "Big Three" or to one of their own number.

With "favorite sons" eliminated, Taft will gain more delegates than either Dewey or Stassen but will still remain far short of the nomination. The INS poll shows, that with "favorite sons" out of the way, the "Big Three" would have:

Taft, 393 delegates; Dewey, 283 delegates; Stassen, 157 delegates.

THIS INDICATES there will be a deadlock in the early balloting at the convention.

Stassen has made some slight gains in recent weeks against both Taft and Dewey but he has aroused widespread animosities in so doing.

Both Taft and Dewey leaders say they will never consent to Stassen's nomination. This sentiment badly handicaps the efforts of Stassen's leaders to gain second choice pledges if Taft and Dewey are beaten.

There has been much talk of Taft and Dewey "getting together" on a "dark horse" if they cannot win the nomination. There has been no move yet in this direction but it is not beyond the realm of possibility.

Sen. Arthur Vandenberg, of Michigan, and Speaker Joseph W. Martin, of Massachusetts, lead the "dark horse" field. In the background are Gov. Earl Warren, of California, and Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

There are some signs that Pennsylvania may hold the key to the "dark horse" decision, if the "big three" deadlock the convention.

Numerous Pennsylvania leaders have said that the state's 73 delegates would go to Speaker Martin after a few "favorite son" ballots for their senator, Edward Martin.

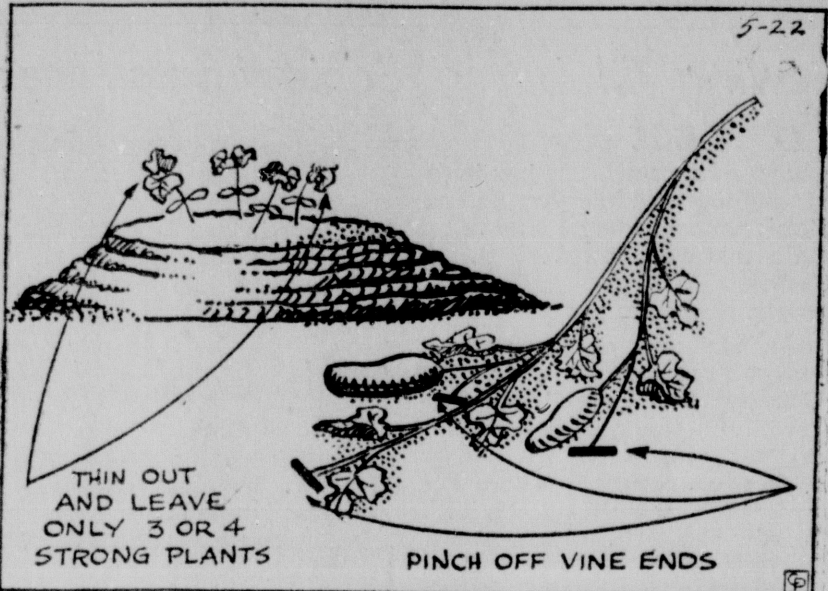

In recent weeks, there have been rumors that Pennsylvania might prefer Senator Vandenberg. Either way, the Pennsylvania delegation would give its preferred "dark horse" a terrific boost.

On the other hand, a Pennsylvania bolt to Taft would about settle the outcome. A similar move to Dewey could well start a stampede that would end in the New Yorker's nomination.

The street and traffic safety lighting bureau of Cleveland analyzing traffic accident and crime reports from leading cities, reports that 84 percent of the fatal accidents, 55 percent of the purse snatchings, 71 percent of the assaults on women, and 68 percent of the car thefts occur after dark.

Cucumbers -- How to Sow and When

By DEAN HALLIDAY
Distributed by Central Press Association

DESPITE their rampant growth, cucumbers are tender, warmth-loving plants and seeds should not be sown until soil and weather have become quite warm, toward the end of May.

Cucumbers are planted much the same as squashes, either in hills or furrows. Space the hills four feet apart each way. As cucumbers require a rich soil, mix a commercial fertilizer or well-rotted manure with the soil.

When planting in a hill make a furrow one-half inch deep, running it in circular form, about four inches in diameter, around the top of each hill and scatter a dozen seeds in it.

The seedlings will appear in about a week's time. When the plants have three or four leaves, thin out, leaving only three or four of the strongest plants, as illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph. As the vines develop, pinch off the ends of shoots, as illustrated, to keep the plant from running into vine growth instead of fruits. Lateral shoots should be pinched off one leaf beyond the fruit. This makes for strong, healthy plants.

Pick the first fruits when they are but three to four inches long. This practice permits the plant to reach a normal growth and produce a larger crop than it would if its strength were used in maturing the first fruits. In fact, all cucumbers should be picked when of sufficient size to use, whether required or not, otherwise the vine will go to seed.

Keep the soil loose and free of weeds. When weeding the hills, which should be done by hand, be sure to press soil over any rootlets that are apt to become exposed.

Hoover Dam in Arizona and Nevada is higher than the Washington monument. About 92 cubic miles of water are stored behind it.

Pickaway Books Commencement For Thursday

To Men of the High School CLASS OF '48

THERE'S a big day coming soon—the day when you get your diploma. At your graduation exercises you'll hear two things mentioned often—the opportunities and the obligations of manhood. Those aren't just words. They deserve the serious thinking of every high school graduate.

As an American citizen your opportunities are greater than in any other country on earth. And for that very reason you have an obligation to defend America and its freedoms—to make this way of life secure.

By enlisting in the Army or Air Force after graduation you will be discharging your debt to your country. At the same time you can take advantage of one of the finest opportunities ever offered a young man.

CHOOSE YOUR FIELD OF SPECIAL TRAINING BEFORE YOU ENLIST!

If you are 18 to 34 (17 with parents' consent) and a high school graduate, you can select your course of training in the Army or the Air Force before enlisting.

Under the Army Technical School Plan you can specify two different courses that appeal to you in each of two fields. The Army will check to make sure there is an opening in one of the four courses you have selected, and a place will be reserved for you in that course. Then you enlist for 3, 4 or 5 years, and after passing the physical and mental examinations and completing basic training you will be guaranteed training in your chosen field.

The Air Force offers a similar opportunity in its Aviation Career Plan, giving you a pre-enlistment choice of 3 among the more than 40 USAF Specialist Schools. There is no better way to get a start in the great and growing field of aviation.

Either plan gives you good pay, excellent training and a splendid chance for advancement in a real career. You can get full information, including lists of available Specialist Schools and Technical Courses, at your nearest Army and Air Force Recruiting Station.

To Men with 2 Years or More of College WIN YOUR WINGS with the Aviation Cadets

If you are single, 20 to 26½ years old, physically sound, and have completed at least 2 years of college or the equivalent, you may be qualified for pilot training as an Aviation Cadet. Get full details now. Next class starts July 1, 1948.

To Men of the High School CLASS OF '48

THERE's a big day coming soon—the day when you get your diploma. At your graduation exercises you'll hear two things mentioned often—the opportunities and the obligations of manhood. Those aren't just words. They deserve the serious thinking of every high school graduate.

As an American citizen your opportunities are greater than in any other country on earth. And for that very reason you have an obligation to defend America and its freedoms—to make this way of life secure.

By enlisting in the Army or Air Force after graduation you will be discharging your debt to your country. At the same time you can take advantage of one of the finest opportunities ever offered a young man.

CHOOSE YOUR FIELD OF SPECIAL TRAINING BEFORE YOU ENLIST!

If you are 18 to 34 (17 with parents' consent) and a high school graduate, you can select your course of training in the Army or the Air Force before enlisting.

Under the Army Technical School Plan you can specify two different courses that appeal to you in each of two fields. The Army will check to make sure there is an opening in one of the four courses you have selected, and a place will be reserved for you in that course. Then you enlist for 3, 4 or 5 years, and after passing the physical and mental examinations and completing basic training you will be guaranteed training in your chosen field.

The Air Force offers a similar opportunity in its Aviation Career Plan, giving you a pre-enlistment choice of 3 among the more than 40 USAF Specialist Schools. There is no better way to get a start in the great and growing field of aviation.

Either plan gives you good pay, excellent training and a splendid chance for advancement in a real career. You can get full information, including lists of available Specialist Schools and Technical Courses, at your nearest Army and Air Force Recruiting Station.

To Men with 2 Years or More of College WIN YOUR WINGS with the Aviation Cadets

If you are single, 20 to 26½ years old, physically sound, and have completed at least 2 years of college or the equivalent, you may be qualified for pilot training as an Aviation Cadet. Get full details now. Next class starts July 1, 1948.

Plane Mishaps Under Probe

COLUMBUS, May 17—Investigations were launched today into three airplane crashes—two of them at Columbus—that took the lives of four persons in less than 10 hours yesterday.

A twin engine C-46 Curtiss Commando owned by the Slick Airways, Inc., of San Antonio, Texas, crashed last night only two miles northeast of Port Columbus, killing the pilot and co-pilot, the only persons on board.

Identified through papers in their pockets were Pilot W. R. McCauley of Ft. Dodge, Ia., and the co-pilot, Jack Raymond Foote of Chicago.

Two naval reserve pilots who died when their Corsair fighter planes crashed in separate accidents were Lt. JG Theodore L. Meyer, 25, of Columbus, and Lt. JG William J. Smith of Newark.

Meyer crashed near Centerburg late Sunday morning and Smith's plane dove into a field near Port Columbus shortly after 5 p. m. Navy officers said they were on routine training flights.

THE CARGO plane, en route from Newark, N. J., to Chicago with a cargo of women's and children's clothing radioed the Port Columbus control tower a short time before it crashed to report trouble with its rudder and ask for emergency landing procedure.

Navy Lt. J. H. Knoop of Troy, saw the plane approach the field. Knoop said:

"He made two passes at the field and crashed on the third. He started to land to the southwest and actually got his wheels on the ground. But he was going too fast, so he pulled up and went on around."

"Then he tried to land to the south but still was going too fast, so he pulled up again."

"As he got half way around on the downwind leg of his next approach, I saw his lights reverse. That means only one thing. He was on his back. Then he went into a dive."

About the earlier evening crash, Comdr. H. J. Murray, air station executive officer, said Smith had signalled for a landing, but had been waved on to let another plane land first.

HE SAID Smith apparently pulled up, stalled, fell off on one wing and crashed into a field, across from the Lustron Corp. near the airport.

Murray said Meyer, pilot of the other downed fighter, had been flying in formation with another reservist when he suddenly dropped on the farm of Lee Hunt about two miles west of Centerburg.

The state highway patrol reported witnesses said the plane came down with "a terrific noise," black smoke pouring from the body, and buried parts of the engine eight feet deep in the earth.

They said the plane exploded, scattering parts over a two-acre area.

Burglars Enter School, Grocery

COLUMBUS, May 17—Sheriff's deputies reported today that burglars stole about $550 from the high school and a grocery store at Groveport and broke into the high school at Canal Winchester.

They said the robbers used a sledge hammer and chisel to batter open the safe in the Groveport school where they got about $500. The thugs also bat-

NEW PLANES in the projected 70-group Air Force (6,869 planes) include the Boeing B-50 heavy bomber, Lockheed P-50 Shooting Star jet, Curtiss-Wright P-87 four-jet all-weather fighter, North American P-86 jet fighter, North American B-45 four-jet bomber, Republic P-84 Thunderbolt. The Air Force plans to buy 2,727 new planes right away in a five-year modernization program which will bring the total plane strength to 12,441 of all types, with emphasis on attack. (International)

Lass, 17, Hurt In Gun Mishap

NEWARK, May 17—Newark City hospital attendants listed as "poor" today the condition today of a high school senior, Betty Stevens, 17, who was shot and critically wounded at a Buckeye Lake shooting gallery.

They said the girl, who was accidentally shot by her soldier "date," Richard Lehman, home on leave, was in critical condition from shock caused by loss of blood from an operation performed early Sunday.

Licking County sheriff's deputies said they were not holding Lehman.

They reported he had fired the .22 calibre rifle several times and thought it was empty. As he turned to reload it, the gun accidentally discharged, sending a bullet into the girl's abdomen.

tered through a wall in the grocery store to steal about $50 from a juke box.

Deputies said burglars apparently tried to chisel through a concrete wall to a safe at the Canal Winchester school, but gave up after they penetrated to a depth of about four inches.

Horstman Due To Be Dethroned

COLUMBUS, May 17—The lengthy reign of Albert A. Horstman of Dayton, as chairman of the Ohio Democratic party may end today.

The state central committee elected at the May 4 primary, in its organization meeting, is slated to select Eugene Hanhart, Dover insurance man, as chairman to succeed Horstman.

Hanhart was one of the foremost leaders in the successful primary campaign of former Gov. Frank J. Lausche for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination. Horstman, on the other hand, was all-out for Lausche's defeated and bitter rival, Ray T. Miller.

SEC Hearings Continuing

CLEVELAND, May 17—The Securities Exchange Commission hearings resume here today with brokers and security dealers who bargained with Otis and Co., to handle Kaiser-Frazier stock scheduled to take the witness stand.

They have been subpoenaed by the SEC to testify in the investigation of Otis' sudden withdrawal from the stock deal in a move which killed the issue. It was rumored that several high Otis officials and their attorneys also might be recalled to the stand.

Dayton, Rev. Mr. Fudge returned to attend the baccalaureate services at EUB church Sunday and the commencement exercises Tuesday.

Considerable damage was done to autos owned by Thurman Wheeler and Vonnies Boggs in a street intersection collision Sunday afternoon on Scioto street. Mrs. Wheeler was removed by ambulance to Berger hospital where examination revealed only minor injuries.

165,000 CUSTOMERS LOST

AL's Eastern Ball Clubs Eye Rains, Bank Balances

NEW YORK, May 17—The American League's eastern clubs headed westward today with their owners grumbling about the rain which cost them a fortune during the past week.

For instance, General Manager George Weiss of the New York Yankees estimates between 165,000 admissions during the past few rainy days.

The Yanks, incidentally, are going west with two men missing. Pitcher Bill Bevens was sent to the club's Newark International League game to condition his sore arm, and Lonnie Frey, veteran utility infielder, was given his unconditional release.

Four eastern games were washed out Sunday, but in the west the two homerun leaders of their respective leagues each added a circuit clout to their totals.

A HOMER by Ken Keltner, the top man, failed to aid the Cleveland Indians as they dropped a 10-inning decision to the Chicago White Sox, 6 to 4.

Hank Sauer's three-run four-bagger helped Cincinnati win a 13 to 11 donnybrook from the Chicago Cubs.

Handy Andy Pafko whacked two homers for the Bruins.

The St. Louis Cardinals increased their lead over the idle New York Giants in the National League race to a full game by nosing out the Pittsburgh Pirates, 6 to 5, in the tenth inning. A pop fly single by Terry Moore broke up the game.

In the American League, the Boston Red Sox strengthened their hold on fourth place and racked up their fourth straight win by coming from behind to down the Washington Senators, 14 to 5. The second game of the scheduled twin bill was rained out.

Whitey Platt was the whole show in the 3-to-2 victory registered by the St. Louis Browns over Detroit. He socked a homer, a triple and a double, and scored the winning run in the ninth on a single by Roy Partee.

When author Wesley Martin threatens to win the affections of the belle of the town, Ben Willet and Howie McBrayer forget their rivalry long enough to join forces in throwing the book at him on "Point Sublime," Monday at 8 p. m. over ABC.

The object of this unbridled jealousy, Evelyn Hanover, is only trying to help the handsome writer get settled in his new home but Ben and Howie know that she can recognize a good-looking, educated man when he turns up in "Point Sublime" and they fear the worst.
Co-starred on "Point Sublime" are veteran radio comedians Cliff Arquette and Mel Blanc.
Robert L. Redd writes and produces for the sponsor, John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Company. Art Gilmore announces and Charles Dant directs the music.

Broadway actress Ann Shepherd will star as a fairy princess from eastside New York, who meets and literally crowns a prince charming in "Touch of Death," on "Inner Sanctum's" spoof-the-spooks session Monday at 8 p. m. over CBS.

Mason Adams will play the part of Perry Banks, a man who learns what not to do when he gets a strange offer to make his three wishes come true.
"Touch of Death" tells what happens when a fairy princess emerges from her ivory tower, waves her magic wand and finds that it produces cops, corpses and gunmen.

Metropolitan Opera star James Melton will sing an aria from the opera "Manon" in the "harvest of Stars" program, Wednesday at 9:30 p. m. over CBS.

The International Harvester symphonic orchestra, conducted by Dr. Frank Black, will accompany Mr. Melton in the aria and in "Mavis" by Harold Craxton. In "La Reve" (The Dream), Mr. Melton, as the chevalier de Grioux, sings to Manon of the little dream house he is planning

Legal Notices

PROBATE COURT,
Pickaway County, Ohio.
In the Matter of the Adoption of Florence Irene Heeter.
NOTICE OF HEARING
No. 15484
To Martha Robinson, the mother of said child, the last known address of the said Martha Robinson being 118 Franklin Street, Dayton, Ohio, and her present address being unknown:
You are hereby notified that on the 2nd day of April, 1948, George W. Heeter and Luella Heeter filed in case No. 15484 their petition to adopt Florence Irene Heeter, a child of the age of 8 years, born on the 18th day of January, 1940.
The said petition states that you as the mother of said child have willfully failed to properly support and maintain said child for a period of more than two years immediately preceding the filing of this petition.
The said petition will be for hearing before this Court at Circleville, Ohio, on the 22nd day of May, 1948, at 11:00 o'clock a. m.
In testimony whereof, witness my hand and the seal of said Probate Court this 24th day of April, 1948.

Chan finds that a small slang expression leads to a big murder.

Self-service gas stations with 18 to 20 pumps at highway traffic corners in Los Angeles, are pleasing customers, it's reported. They pay five cents less than the regular price of gas, but have to drive to the rear to help themselves.

Controlling the breathing at the beginning of an attack, deliberate avoidance of rapid breathing, or holding the breath a little, all may help prevent or break up a threatened attack.

Of course, an attempt must be made to find the underlying emotional troubles and to get rid of them. Any physical disorders must be discovered and treated. With sympathetic and tactful handling by the physician, it is possible in nearly all instances to clear up this kind of disturbance.

Shortness of breath may also indicate some disturbance of the heart or lungs. Hence, when it occurs, there is always need for a thorough study by a physician. When the exact cause of the disturbance is found, proper treatment may be carried out.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
M. G. Will wearing a surgical belt in gaining weight cause a fallen kidney to return to its normal position?
Answer: Wearing a surgical belt in gaining weight should aid in relieving the symptoms due to a fallen kidney. It is not likely that it would cause the kidney to return to its normal position.

Los Angeles, California was first visited by white men in 1769.

Wife Preservers

Diet And Health

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

AS we all know, happiness is a great tonic. The bad effects of chronic dissatisfaction with life are less readily demonstrated, but now and then we do see disorders which are traceable directly to this cause. One such condition seems particularly to affect young women. Their chief complaint is shortness of breath, together with a feeling of tightness in the chest and noticeable beating of the heart. Attacks of this sort do not last long but they may recur on and off for weeks at a time.

Consult the Doctor

These patients frequently consult the doctor because they fear a possible nervous condition. Careful physical examination, however, will reveal nothing wrong with either heart or lungs, and questioning brings out the fact that such patients do not become short of breath as the result of exertion, as do those with organic heart disease. Furthermore, the attacks rarely come on when their attention is fixed elsewhere, that is, when they are busy and interested in their work. Almost uniformly, these women are nervous, over-fatigued, and basically unhappy. These things have undermined morale and made them a prey to unreasonable fears. Often the reassurance of the doctor that nothing is seriously amiss with the heart is enough to banish the attacks, but sometimes help in eliminating severe emotional disturbance is also necessary.

A Serious Form

A more serious form of the condition is one in which deep, sighing breathing is prolonged or is replaced by rapid, deep and forceful breathing. This may cause the patient to become light-headed, and tingling or numbness in the fingers and toes may develop.

In these patients, the background of unhappiness or trouble is more evident. Often there is a history of family illness or overwork. The attacks may be brought on by pain coming from various causes.

In treating this more serious condition, it is necessary for the physician to gain the patient's confidence and explain to her just what is occurring.

Beginning of Attack

Controlling the breathing at the beginning of an attack, deliberate avoidance of rapid breathing, or holding the breath a little, all may help prevent or break up a threatened attack.

HI!

HEY, SHE NEVER EVEN GAVE US A NOD! MUST BE A BIG DEAL COOKIN'!

SUMMER PRACTICALLY STARING ME IN THE FACE AND I SIMPLY HAVEN'T GOT A THING PLANNED!

AFTER I WORKED MY FINGERS TO THE BONE, STUDYING ALL WINTER, DAD'D TELL ME TO TAKE A JOB!

WOULDN'T IT BE ACTUALLY THRILLING TO DO SOMETHING EXCITING? I MEAN, LIKE DOING SOMETHING DIFFERENT?

DAD PROMISED ME A TRIP!

O.K. NOW, ALITA?

I AM SORRY AND EMBARRASSED IT WAS WEAK OF ME TO FAINT!

WHEN YOU SAID YOU PLANNED TO VISIT THE AMAUTAS, MY BRAIN STOOD STILL WITH FEAR—FOR I REMEMBERED THE PROPHECY!

AS A CHILD I LEARNED THE PROPHECY THAT TWO MEN AND A GIRL FROM THE FAR NORTH WOULD VISIT THE AMAUTAS, AND GREAT EVIL WOULD RESULT!

BUT MY FEARS ARE FOOLISH—FOR THERE ARE NOT THREE—BUT TWO OF YOU, AND THE PROPHECY CANNOT HAVE MEANT YOU!

IF WE TELL MISS OYL SHE'S SUPPOSEDLY BECOME BEAUTIFUL, I'M QUITE SURE SHE WILL BELIEVE US!

POPEYE, I LOST MY TEMPER WHEN THE JUICE DIDN'T MAKE ME PRETTY!

POPEYE, WHO IS THIS LOVELY INTRUDER?

THAT'S WHAT I AM WONDERING, MESELF, WIMPY?

WHAT?? YOU DON'T RECOGNIZE ME??

Many Veterans Apparently Still Unaware Of Job Right

A number of veterans, recently discharged from active service, are not taking advantage of their reemployment rights as provided by Act of Congress, C. C. Thomas, Bureau of Unemployment Compensation aide in Cincinnati, said Monday.

Thomas said that BUC personnel have been instructed to see to it that veterans applying for jobs or filing claims for readjustment allowances under the GI Bill of Rights are fully informed as to their rights to the jobs they held before going into service.

The BUC, he said, would continue to work closely with the Veterans' Reemployment Rights Division of the U. S. Department of Labor in furtherance of this objective.

Veterans legally qualified for reemployment rights include: (1) Persons inducted for military training and service under the provisions of the Selective Training and Service Act of 1940, as amended; (2) members of any reserve component of the land or naval forces who were on active duty on Aug. 27, 1940,

FORMER PREMIER and ex-Chief of Staff of the Lithuanian Army Jonas Cernius (above) has been working in a Newark, New Jersey, radio factory as a bench hand at a salary of $30 a week. Described as a "good Joe" by fellow workers, Cernius told reporters, "There was a war, and I need money. I am fifty and have none." (International) or who were called to active duty after that date; (3) all persons who, after May 1, 1940, entered upon active service in the U. S. land or naval forces, including the women's components of such forces; (4) reserve officers of the United States Public Health Service called to active duty after Nov. 11, 1943.

GENERALLY speaking, an individual in any one of these groups who has satisfactorily completed his term of active service is entitled to the job he held before being called to active duty or to a position of "like seniority, status and pay."

The veteran retains his reemployment rights only if he applies for reemployment within 90 days after he is discharged. If the veteran has been hospitalized, he is eligible for reemployment rights if he applies within 90 days after leaving the hospital providing that he has been hospitalized for not more than one year following his discharge.

Thomas pointed out that any veteran entitled to reemployment rights and benefits cannot be discharged within one year without cause from the position to which he is restored.

If, due to a misunderstanding with his former employer, the veteran is deprived of reemployment rights, he may file suit in the United States district court for the district in which the employer maintains his business.

The federal law also states that the filing of such suit, providing that the U. S. district attorney in the area feels that the suit is legitimate, will be carried through at no expense to the veteran. Furthermore, the law provides that the federal district attorney shall act as the veteran's attorney if the veteran so desires.

Patrolman Warns Safety Needed On Holiday Trips

Motorists planning an automobile trip for the Memorial Day weekend are urged by State Highway Patrolman C. E. Wells to pay strict heed to the safety of themselves and others, while driving.

Safe driving practices must be put into effect by the motorists in order to keep down the high toll of accidents on streets and highways jammed with weekend traffic over Decoration Day, Wells declared.

In furtherance of Gov. Thomas J. Herbert's statewide program of traffic safety, these timely suggestions are offered by the state highway department's division of traffic and safety to motorists who may be on the road over the Memorial Day weekend:

See that your car is in perfect condition before starting out. Make sure that the following are in safe operating order: headlights, tail and stop lights, brakes, steering assembly, windshield wipers, rearview mirror, tires and horn. Check your car and check accidents.

GET AN EARLY start so that most of the trip will be behind you before traffic gets heavy.

Get an early start home so as to avoid heavy homeward-bound traffic and also to avoid driving when you are tired.

Above all, don't assume the sort of holiday spirit which leads you to forget your car and caution.

Raging Storms Hit Cleveland

CLEVELAND, May 17 — A raging storm which swept in from the northwest last night left a trail of uprooted trees, snapped overhead wires and smashed windows across Cleveland today.

The thunderstorms last night and early today caused considerable damage at the Brush Development Co. and apparently resulted in a fire causing an estimated $8,500 damage to the Cleveland fire department's main headquarters.

The blaze at the fire department headquarters broke out amid claps of thunder and bursts of lightning late yesterday. Twelve pieces of fire-fighting equipment turned out to battle the triple alarm.

Columbus Pair Dies In Crash

COLUMBUS, May 17—Adin I. Beard, 69, of Columbus, and his wife, Mary 60, were killed outright by a New York Central passenger train that dragged their car 700 yards from a crossing three miles west of Galloway last evening.

A social security card identified Beard as a carpenter at the International Derrick and Equipment Co. of Columbus. Mrs. Beard was identified at a funeral home by a daughter, Mrs. Leona Eyster of Columbus.

Sheriff's deputies said they notified the couple's seven other children of the tragedy about an hour after the accident, which occurred at 6:40 p. m.
